MAIL TO THE KANSAS GOLD REGION—THE BOSTON POST-OFFICE—ARMY AND NAVY AFFAIRS—THE TREASURY, &C.

WASHINGTON, Saturday, March 26.

The contract for carrying the mail from Leavenworth to Coraville, Pike's Peak region, was made under the act of 1825, authorizing the establishment of special Post-offices, to be sustained from their net proceeds; and such is the arrangement in this case that the compensation is in no event to exceed $500 per annum. If the Post Route bill had passed, and the contract been made under it, this service would have cost thirty or forty thousand dollars a year. The contractors will be mainly compensated for their outlay in the carrying of passengers.

The Boston Post-office question was yesterday considered in the Cabinet. Both Postmaster CAPEN and the parties representing the State-street interest had separate interviews with the Postmaster-General to-day.

The Land Office, situated at Buchanan, Minnesota, has been ordered to be removed to Portland, in the same State.

Colonel LANDER will leave Washington on Monday, to resume work on the South Pass wagon-road, for the purpose of repairing damages and shortening the route as far as practicable.

The Treasurer's weekly statement shows a net balance in the Treasury of over $7,000,000. The receipts of the week were $1,815,000.

The Case of Henry Gambrill, the Murderer

BALTIMORE, Saturday, March 26.

The Patriot this afternoon contains a long statement prepared by the friends of HENRY GAMBRILL, one of the condemned criminals now awaiting execution for the murder of Police Officer BENTON, giving affidavits of certain parties to show that another party, named RICHARD HARRIS, was the perpetrator of the murder, and that he (HARRIS) confessed the deed to certain parties. It is, however, not deemed worthy of credence, and has all been before the Governor and rejected by him some time back. It is the last desperate dodge to save the life of this wretched criminal.

AFFAIRS AT ALBANY.

New-York and Brooklyn Legislation—A Pile Ready for Third Reading—The Paid Jury Bill Killed—City Railroads, &c., &c.

From Our Own Correspondent.

ALBANY, Saturday, March 26, 1859.

The Grinding Committee has become the chief attraction of the Capitol for a season. Legislation is stupefied and slow both in the Senate and the Assembly chamber. But the wheel of the Committee of Nine turns perpetually, and the local bills are already almost exhausted. Unless the bridges, and tunnels, and City railroads go in, there will be nothing whatever to feed their mill with in a few days. This morning the Williamsburg Railroads were turned out, and it is understood that they will go to the same Select Committee to stifle one or other of them, or out of the two to compound a third, that will be satisfactory to the conflicting parties. The Committee waits till Tuesday or Wednesday afternoon before acting upon them. The tunnel choked up the hopper, and had to be withdrawn by its friends. The Woman's Library bill commended itself to universal favor and went through without a whisper of objection; so did the Williamsburg Fire Department act; and so, too, the bill making the price a reputable one to be paid for the publication of legal notices.

The Brooklyn Water and Sewerage bills are still in the hands of the Cities and Villages,—the members yet hesitating which to report,—the Commissioners' or the Common Council's bill. The Roving Railroad—one of LITCHFIELD's pets—is number 307 on General Orders, and cannot afford to wait until it is regularly reached. The Post Warden's bill lies No. 310 on General Orders. Its friends wait for a high tide to float it unobserved through the Committee of Nine. The Jamaica Fisheries, the Brooklyn Almshouse, the Cold Spring Railroad, the Wallabout Monument, and the American Missionary Society have been ordered to a third reading.

Into that entertaining order the House went yesterday morning, and in it are likely to remain till Wednesday—perhaps Saturday—morning next, for the file of bills engrossed is immense, and every few hours the Senate opens the pile and thrusts in a dozen more.

The following bills, among others, had their third reading last evening:

In relation to the commitment of vagrants and lunatics in Kings County, authorizing the overseers of the poor instead of justices to commit them.

To legalize the action of the New-York Common Council in the matter that District-Attorney BLUNT had all hands of them indicted for.

To alter the map of your City—two bills widening Seventh-avenue at its upper end and laying down the Central Park as fixed by the next bill.

The Central Park Extension.

To provide for the payment of interest on the drafts of the Canal Commissioners on the Auditor of the Canal Department—ayes 78, noes 12—an amendment having been inserted authorizing the payment of interest on the certificates hereafter to be issued by the Canal Commissioners precisely as upon the drafts heretofore drawn.

The Senate bill making appropriations for the Canal debt and for the maintenance of the canals for the year that commenced Oct. 1, 1858.

Granting the people's right in a messuage lot of ground in the First Ward of New-York to the Rev. ROBERT ARNOLD and his wife—but this was a two-thirds bill, and though it got 84 votes, lacked two of the necessary number and so was tabled.

Mr. RUTHERFORD's bill to pay Jurors in your City had been fought over by the hour since early in the session. One City member after another had been conquered of his prejudices, until it seemed ready to glide easily into a snug place on the statute books. Mr. SPENCER latterly having taken so much interest in it as to come to be considered its godfather. Last evening, about 6½ o'clock, Jacob Smith arose, when its title was read, and asked to have it recommitted to the Judiciary Committee, with instructions to them never to report it again. This carrying, the bill was as dead as a door-nail. At 7¼ P. M. the house reassembling, Mr. SPENCER made a desperate effort to perform upon it the same experiment that Pantagruel wrought upon Episteman, when a sabre had severed his head from his body, and sent it rolling in the dust. Episteman's head grew so fast in three days that an unusual disposition to sneeze was all that Pantagruel perceived amiss in him. But SPENCER was not so lucky. He tried reconsiderations and rescinding, and all sorts of plasters to heal broken bills, but it was no go, and the hangers-on about your Courts, who manage to turn up on Juries every three weeks, must look to the same source as ever to get their pay,—the law refuses to support them.

The Senate ordered to a third reading to-day the Dering's Harbor and Greenport Ferry, and Mr. SPINOLA's New-York Steamboat and Railroad Accident Insurance Company. They made the Public Health Bill a special order for Tuesday, 11 A. M. Their grinding apparatus is new yet, and the cool deliberation with which the most unimportant matters are discussed is exceedingly refreshing.

The City Railroad schemes—three of them at least—are the Assembly's special order for Tuesday next. It was a dodge of their enemies to make them a special order and to save them out of the hands of the Committee of Nine. But the effort to stop them will not probably prove availing. The objection to them is threefold: 1st. A Democratic objection—that they create powerful political machines, of which Republicans will have the control. 2d. The objection of outsiders, who believe in Railroads, but have not been let in; several stage-route proprietors are in this category and are busy trying to organize an opposition in the Legislature. 3d. The honest, creditable objection to giving away valuable franchises while parties stand ready to buy them at a high figure. The whole subject has been amply discussed during the past week, the near approach of the subject in Committee making it the topic and the talk of every circle. The three roads favorably reported on hold the following routes, which as they are quite sure to go through you may as well republish now:

1. The Seventh-avenue (alias parallel) Railroad starts at the Central Park, runs down Seventh-avenue to Broadway, (at Forty-fourth-street,) down Broadway to Union-square, down University-place to Waverley-place, up Waverley to Green-street, down Green to Canal, down Canal to West Broadway, down West Broadway to Barclay, up Barclay to Broadway, back to Church, up Church to Canal, up Mercer to Eighth, down Eighth to University-place, and back by a double track to Central Park.

2. The Fourteenth-street Railroad leaves the Hudson River with a double track up Fourteenth-street to Hudson, down Hudson to Troy, then, on a single track, up Troy to Fourth, down Fourth to Macdougal, down Macdougal to Bleecker, then, with a double track, down Bleecker, and Crosby, and Elm, and Chatham to the foot of the Park. Returning, a single track follows Bleecker-street from Macdougal to Troy.

3. The Avenue D Road lies in Chatham, East Broadway, Columbia and Avenue D. These three are a sure thing, and how many more is all a matter of guess.

THE TEHUANTEPEC ROUTE.

Detailed Narrative of a Journey Across the Tehuantepec Isthmus.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

I avail myself of the first agreeable opportunity to give you a faithful statement of my experience in crossing the Tehuantepec route. We left San Francisco at 5 P. M. of Feb. 19, with 132 passengers on board of the Golden Age, and with but one incident worthy of note, made the usual pleasant run to Acapulco, arriving there at about 6 A. M. on Sunday, the 27th. Off Manzanilla we spoke the United States sloop-of-war Vandalia, SINCLAIR, commander, from Guyamas, bound for the different accessible ports in the Pacific to the northward of Panama. We were boarded by one of her boats, bringing two passengers bound for the East. On the 25th, at about 11 A. M., one of our Tehuantepec passengers, from St. Louis, Mo., by name R. S. CLARK, while under mental aberration, superinduced by whisky, let himself down over the guards, and before a boat could reach him he had sunk. Among his effects was found upwards of $500 in gold, which the purser of the Golden Age took charge of, to be handed to the United States Consul at Panama. Shortly after coming to anchor in the port of Acapulco, the passengers intending to cross the Isthmus of Tehuantepec, sixteen in all, left the Golden Age and proceeded on board the steamer Oregon, which lay at anchor some two hundred yards distant. At 11¼ A. M. on the same day we weighed anchor and proceeded on our way to "La Ventosa," distant about 290 miles. We reached our destination about 9 o'clock in the evening of Monday the 20th February. Shortly after our coming to an anchor (about three hundred yards from the shore) we were boarded by an agent of the Tehuantepec Transit Company, who informed us that at daylight on the ensuing morning boats would be sent to convey us ashore with our baggage. On the next morning at 6 o'clock two large metal boats of Francis' patent came alongside, and we proceeded to get ourselves and baggage in one of them, a feat of no ordinary difficulty and some danger. Heavy rollers were coming in, and the ship was careening violently from one side to the other, and it required the exercise of no ordinary skill to prevent the boats from being stove by the companion-way, or being crowded under the wheel, and corresponding agility on the part of the passengers to get in the boats, and excellent judgment in the selection of the exact time when they should spring in. We proceeded to the shore, our boat manned by seven native shoremen, whose performances in the handling of their boat would equal the best efforts of the Barnegat or Long Island surf boatmen. When within about twenty yards of the shore our boat grounded, the crew leaped overboard, and on their shoulders conveyed the passengers and their luggage to the dry beach.

Now, a word or two with reference to "La Ventosa." This place must ever be a stumbling-block in the way of the perfect success of the route, even if the serious difficulties and embarrassments of which I shall more particularly speak should or can be remedied. It is simply an open roadstead, and not an harbor, exposed—except in one or two points of the compass—to all the wind and sea. The time that we landed was said to be one of the most favorable, still a heavy surf was on; our ship was rolling sufficient to jump her masts out, and had our boats been unskillfully managed one or the other perhaps would have been upset.

A better place, some four miles distant, has been found, which, it is said, possesses a secure anchorage close to the shore, and is only exposed to the sea and wind from but a few points of the compass. At 6½ o'clock on Tuesday, March 1, the passengers, together with their baggage, were on the beach at "La Ventosa." We then walked through the heavy sand to the Company's office, about two hundred and fifty yards, and our baggage was transported thither by the natives, carrying it on their shoulders. The morning was fine, but the weather intensely hot, and continued so until we were in the Gulf of Mexico. We arrived at the Company's office, which, without flooring, was simply an erection of undressed poles, twenty feet in height, but placed close together, and fastened by thongs of leather, and the roof covered with dried grass. Our baggage was there received by a Mexican official, who placed around each parcel a cord, affixing a leaden seal. It was then taken in charge by the baggage-master of the Transit route who proceeded to weigh each piece, charging ten cents per pound beyond fifty pounds, which being collected, the baggage was checked and a corresponding numbered check given. These ceremonies occupied about an hour, and the word was given to start Some seven Concord coaches were on hand to transport us and our baggage to the city of Tehuantepec about 15 miles distant. We were compelled to walk through heavy sand about three-quarters of a mile, as the horses were unable to pull us through it. Finally we mounted our coach and proceeded over a tolerably smooth road to the city, reaching it in about three hours.

At 5 P. M., after partaking of a tolerably severe meal, which was urged upon our consideration as a dinner, and paying California prices of 1850 for everything, we again proceeded on our journey, having nine persons within and two, exclusive of the driver, outside of our coach. Owing to a want of proper management, two coaches were crowded with passengers, while in the others there were but one to three persons each. The road was tolerably good and level for the first twenty miles, save every now and then some rough places to cross, we following a new road which had been cut through the low woods and jungle by the company, and well lighted by the fired stumps, which were being successfully removed in that way. We met with no running streams, nor with water, save that which was brought and stored in barrels by the way-side for the horses' use, until we were within about fifteen miles of Almaloya, when, at intervals, we crossed the Rio de los Perro, and the Rio Verde, two running streams of insignificant size. At CASEY's camp, about twelve miles this side of Almaloya, we stopped, about 3 o'clock in the morning, to change our four diminutive horses, and in their stead had four American mules. About 4 A. M. we again started to overcome the most arduous portion of the road, leading almost the entire balance of the way over mountains, the highest of which, La Chevéla, is estimated to be upwards of seven hundred and fifty feet in height.

The inmates of our coach were well tired, having then been on the road eleven hours, without any rest, impossible to sleep, crowded as it was, and jolting to such an extent as to pound one almost to the consistence of a jelly. We had proceeded but a portion of the way, when the driver bade us dismount, as we were about to climb a long hill, and that the "cattle" were unable to draw the coach with its passengers. We walked probably a quarter of a mile, then remounted, then thundered down the hill, then again a mile or two of riding, then again dismounting and walking, and so it continued until we had reached and passed beyond the peak of "La Chevéla," when we passed into the plains of that name, and at six o'clock in the morning arrived at Almaloya, completely wearied out by fatigue, and went to sleep. We were shown to a "roosting" place, called and lettered by the imposing name of "Smith's Hotel," where we found some "frijoles" badly smoked, some coarse corn bread and miserable coffee. About 8 A. M. (two hours after our arrival) we were told to mount away, not upon a coach but upon horses, donkeys, and mules of a quality rarely seen. We got on a diminutive donkey, but was crucified in bestriding a saddle, the stirrups and leathers of which were evidently intended for a man who, by some freak of nature, had the lower portion of his body reversed, for they were set behind the centre of the saddle.

At 4 P. M. of that day, after a ride of thirty-three miles over hill and dale, beneath the rays of a burning sun, we arrived at "Sanderson's," a hostelry like our friend SMITH's, but in some respects better. At 5, P. M., we fed; at 6, all wearied out, retired to our beds, which were cots simply, and naught else save a pillow and musquito bar. At 6 A. M., we were on the road again, and variously on donkeys and diminutive horses, away we sped for Suchil, said to be thirty-four miles distant, at which point we fondly hoped our trials would cease. At about 10 A. M., we reached the fifteen mile camp, passing over the Sarabia plains, enduring excessive heat, and almost devoured by a small venomous black fly, called "Rotodos" by the natives. At the camp we halted to take a lunch and recruit, many of my companions, some of them strong men, inured to labor and hardship, complained of fatigue and of feeling ill, but we comforted ourselves that our tribulations would be over when we reached Suchil, and should board the steamer of that name. We again mounted and had proceeded but about a hundred yards, when one of our companions, a California passenger, by name FREDERIC HATZMYER, got off his animal, staggered and fell; with the aid of the natives we took him back to the camp we had just quitted, but there was no person by or to be had who possessed any medical skill to aid the poor fellow, and in about fifteen minutes he died, apparently in great pain, his strength having undoubtedly been previously exhausted by the heat and fatigue of the journey. He had upon his person some $1,300 in gold, a valuable Cooper watch, a sight draft in his own favor for $500, and other valuables. He was buried in a rapidly-dug grave, in the clothing he wore, without a coffin, a gunny bag simply thrown over his face and hands to shield them from the dirt. His effects were inventoried in the presence of a majority of the passengers, and taken possession of by Mr. STEVENS, the General Superintendent of the stage route, to be held for those who may prove themselves legally entitled to them. This person's death, together with the fatigue and illness of many of our party, did not contribute to our comfort, but we cheered each other with the prospect of soon being at "Suchil." Many of us walked much of the distance, enduring the labor and the increased heat, rather than to suffer the torments of the saddle practice; our road led over a long ridge of mountains, and tolerably rough in many places. At five in the afternoon, all of us, more dead than alive, reached the town of "Suchil," an imposing city of three staked wigwams and one wooden house. We had thus accomplished a journey over land of from 119 to 125 miles, that being the distance by the road we had traveled from La Ventosa, on the Pacific side, to Suchil, occupying three days and two nights, with but one night of sleep, and a hard sleep at that. The road was altogether a rough one, the coaches were excellent, the brakes fortunately reliable, the drivers not to be surpassed. The native horses, which were principally used, diminutive in size, seldom exceeding twelve hands, were but just broken into harness, and would cut up the maddest capers on the road imaginable—kick, jump, stiff-legged, bite, fall down, pull back—and when it is considered that much of the road between the Rio Verde and Almaloyla leads up and down over mountains, in narrow form, and by the side of precipices, (to look down which makes the head swim,) it will be thought that the journey has some perils.

To our great disappointment when we reached Suchil, the steamer of that name, which was to take us to Manititian, there to embark on the Quaker City, had not been heard of, although fully due two days before. Various were the conjectures as to the cause of the delay. But wearied out, and after comparatively a comfortable meal, we accepted a friend's hospitable offer to take a cot at his house. During the early part of the evening we were all badly bitten by some unseen insects, and my friend remarked, "There is nothing in these houses can trouble you after you get in bed, except, perhaps, fleas, or ticks; you have a mosquito bar. There are a number of tarantulas in and about that old trunk yonder, but they don't trouble us when in bed, and we never go about 'barefoot,' so you may sleep comfortably."

Tired as I was, I gladly got into the cot, and earnestly hoped that the morrow would bring the steamer Suchil, to bear me away from so unenviable a place. I slept; about midnight I was awakened by feeling a tolerably large bite at my throat, and with the rapidity of thought I grasped at it with my hand, and my fingers clutched a hard-backed, long-legged animal, which I tore from my throat and threw violently from me. I sprang from my bed, put on my boots, emptying out I don't know how many venomous insects, got some tobacco out of my pocket, moistened it with saliva and clapped it to the wound. I ventured to awaken my nearest neighbor who, having gone to bed drunk, naturally enough shouted "Fire" with the lungs of a Stentor, thereby awakening some thirty of my sleeping companions. I ventured to explain to him, subdued the fire of his imagination, and intimated that I had but a few minutes to dance after the fashion of the "Eleler" in the ballet of "La Tarantula." He told me that in the office of the Company I would find a medicine chest, and in it a bottle of ammonia, and to apply it at once, and not to dance until I had taken an internal and external application, which being a reasonable request, and I tolerably fatigued, I complied with. I hastily sought the medicine-chest, found the ammonia, drank a teaspoonful mixed with water, and applied some of it to my neck. As for returning to my bed, with the conviction that my tarantula friend was within it, was impossible; my imagination was powerfully exercised. I felt in fact, that I had gone in. I was bound, however, before death, to view the monster, who, at the solemn hour of midnight, had "stole my breath" away, and seizing the lantern which swung aloft in a neighboring caravansery, I sped to my cot and searched; there were no appliances in the way of bedding, saving one pillow, the odor of which suggested to me that my predecessor must have been actively engaged as a butcher; at the foot of the cot was a blanket, into its folds I searched, and, to my horror, out rushed the largest, strongest, able-bodied black cockroach that ever shocked my gaze; he jumped to the ground, I after him with murderous intent, he described a circle, I described something, he was beneath my uplifted foot, and as that foot (me pede Herculem) descended to crush him, he vamoosed in a hole in the ground. I was beside myself with joy at the prospect of continued life; my fears being groundless, I apologized to my sober room-mates, most of whom were with saucer eyes, anxiously waiting for my dance, and speedy exit. I flung myself again upon the couch, and slept soundly. The morning came, and with its first dawn, I found such irritation of my flesh that I conceived something must have bitten me. I sought the river side, stripped off my clothing and made a superficial examination of my person, and counted 153 bites, which were all in front, thereby showing my bravery and great powers of endurance on the part of my persecutors. I stood on the bank of the Coatzacoalcos River, the water just laving my feet, and prepared for a plunge, to drown such of the monsters as might still be attacking me; and as I was about to plunge, I saw a log quietly disengage itself from the bank, but a few yards above me, which came quietly towards me. I waited, thinking it would pass by—when, to my horror, it opened its mouth and made a dash for the bank on which I stood. It was an alligator. I stood not on the order of my going, but precipitately fled.

At noon of that day we were startled by the acceptable announcement that a bungo had arrived, bringing the mails, and a rush was made to the river to ascertain the whereabouts of the steamer. We then learned that the steamer Suchil, having on board the passengers and mails for San Francisco from New Orleans, had been unable to cross a bar some distance down the river, and had anchored there. Mr. STEVENS determined to try and put the letter bags across to Ventosa by 12 M. of the next day, at which, by the schedule time, the steamer Oregon was to leave the anchorage for Acapulco in order to connect them with the Pacific Mail Steamship Co.'s steamer, bound for San Francisco, no hope being entertained that the passengers could be put across, and, in fact, at that time none had made their appearance, nor could they have done so for hours afterwards, as we subsequently ascertained, and hence the newspaper mail and the passengers must have remained upon the Isthmus until the 21st inst. A rush was made for all the available "bungos" by the passengers, and the writer of this was unfortunate enough to be one of seventeen that filled a large mahogany dug-out or bungo, intended to be propelled by oars or paddles. All the other dug-outs started in advance of us, and we were turned out loose to "paddle our own canoe" down the river, without assistance from employes of the Company to aid us in getting to the steamer. We were cheered, however, with the announcement that the steamer was only some 15 miles below, and having the current with us, believed that we could reach it by dark. We left Suchil about 2 P. M. of that day, Friday, March 4. Most of our crew was composed of passengers from San Francisco, nearly all of whom were worn out and dispirited by the fatigues and exposure that they had undergone. Two of us used the paddles, while another grasped the long oar, which served as a rudder. The current of the river at Suchil at this time ran about two to two and a half knots per hour. The river was full of snags and bars, which required considerable dexterity and strength on the part of our helmsman to avoid. Hour after hour passed on, night came, and yet no steamer light to cheer us. After dark we heard the plash of oars and hailing, was informed that the boat contained passengers bound to San Francisco. We anxiously inquired how far down the river the steamer was, and they answered (and as we then supposed jestingly) "a day's journey." We had nothing to eat nor drink save the river water. About 8 o'clock that night we got aground, and many, nearly all of our crew, were so jaded and worn out that they were reluctant to get out and aid in pulling the "bungo" into deep water. We toiled for an hour, at first dragging the boat some hundred yards further on the bar, deceived by somewhat deeper water, which suddenly shoaled. Again, one of our companions, who seemed disregardful of alligators, in a fit of desperation traversed the river right and left until he ascertained where the channel was, and again we toiled and tugged at the boat until an hour spent, we succeeded in getting afloat. Again we encouraged each other and plied the oars, sometimes pitching into bars and snags, but merely involving some extra labor to disengage our boat and a few minutes' delay. At about a quarter to two we descried afar off the steamer's light; it created but little enthusiasm, for many of our crew, sick and worn out, lay upon the bottom of the boat unconscious, and those at work were wearied to such an extent as to be reckless. We clambered on board, and were kindly greeted by the officers and crew, who, with their limited means, tried to make us comfortable; but the endeavor to sleep the balance of the night was almost fruitless, for the air was thick with mosquitos and "rotodos," and the floor alive with fleas. In the morning, at about 6 o'clock, we started for Minititlan, about fifty miles distant, and reached that town about 5 P. M. of Saturday, March 6; found the Quaker City waiting, and at 7 P. M. started on our way, dropped down the river, and at 9 P. M. crossed the bar, stood out to sea, met with a fierce norther which lasted two days, and on Wednesday morning, March 9, were at the wharf at New-Orleans.

I have only one further statement to make, namely. The dry season upon the Isthmus of Tehuantepec commenced on the Atlantic slope about the 10th of February, and it is said by the natives, and also by Americans who have or pretend to have resided on the Isthmus for a number of years, to continue about four months. The steamer Suchil, with a powerful double engine, an iron hull, drawing light two and a half feet, and but a fortnight after the rains ceased to fall and the dry season commenced, was unable to reach the town of Suchil by upwards of forty miles. What must be the result as the dry season advances? I have thus detailed without the slightest exaggeration my actual experience across the Isthmus of Tehuantepec, and regret that these embarrassments to the perfect success of the route exist, but I deem it to be my duty to state my experience in order that my traveling friends, who may perchance determine to take that route, may learn something of value from an old Californian.

The slave traffic is growing at the South. The Weldon (N. C.) Patriot says that 2,000 negroes passed through that place in January, and not less than 50,000, it is informed, went into the cotton region during the last year.

A tumult occurred, a day or two ago, in the Lunatic Asylum at Toronto, some of the patients rising upon their keepers, but they were overpowered and handcuffed.

WRECK OF THE BRITISH GUN-BOAT JASEUR.

Reported Loss of Forty Lives.

The Cunard steamer Karnak, from Havana and Nassau, N. P., arrived at this port about 1 o'clock on Saturday morning. Among her passengers from Havana is Mr. SAMUEL DUNBAR, who has communicated the particulars of a most disastrous shipwreck which occurred near Jamaica, W. I., on the 4th inst., and the probable loss of forty out of sixty persons constituting the crew of the vessel. Mr. DUNBAR states that the intelligence had not been made public at the time of closing of the mails for New-York, the news having arrived from a port on the south side of the island only a short time before the sailing of the steamer, Mr. DUNBAR having learned the facts, by accident, just as he was on the point of embarking in the steamer. He states that the British gun-boat Jaseur, which was lying at Kingston, Jamaica, on the 1st of March, received orders to depart immediately to cruise on the coast of Cuba, and left port for that purpose. On the night of the 4th inst. she struck a sunken rock, to the northward of Jamaica. The pumps were immediately manned and kept working until daylight, when it was discovered that the water was rapidly gaining, and that it would be impossible to keep her up but a short time.

The captain then ordered a raft to be constructed and to this raft were attached the two boats belonging to the vessel, and the men, sixty in number, all went aboard, with such scanty provisions as they were able to secure from the sinking wreck. A heavy gale set in soon after the men took to the raft, and they had not been out above two hours when ten men were swept overboard and drowned. All efforts to rescue them were hopeless, the men had all they could do to prevent being washed away after them.

The captain seeing it was useless to cling longer to the raft, took nineteen men with him in the smaller boat, and the mate the remaining twenty-nine into the larger one. It was considered useless to attempt to keep together, and the captain said they would each make the best of their way to land, without reference to each other. In a short time the boats were separated by the wind, and the larger boat, containing thirty men, has not been heard of since, and is believed to have been lost, with all on board.

The little provisions the men on the small boat had taken with them were soon consumed, and the wretched party was subjected to the double sufferings of exposure and famine. At last, when all were completely exhausted and perishing, the boat was driven to a port on the southern coast of Cuba, and the entire party survived. The Government immediately sent out two vessels to cruise in search of the missing boat; but their search had proved fruitless.

There has been no official confirmation of this intelligence received in this City, but certain circumstances favor the presumption that the report is correct. Lord EUSTACE CECIL, and the Hon. Mr. LEGGE of the Coldstream Guards, who are now in this City, stated yesterday to Mr. ARCHIBALD, the British Consul, that they recently made a passage in this steamer from Port au Platte to Kingston, Jamaica, and the description of the vessel and the number of the crew corresponds to that of the Jaseur now reported lost. The Jaseur is a British steam gun-boat of 80-horse power, and stationed in the West Indies. She is numbered 642 on the Royal Navy List. The names of her officers and date of their commissions are as follows:

Lieutenant and Commanding, JOHN B. SCOTT, 28th July, 1857.

Assistant-Surgeon THOMAS CRAIG, 15th August, 1857.

Second Master JOHN R. N. MOSS, 30th July, 1857.

The entire crew numbered about 60 persons. It is, however, quite possible that the Captain's boat, containing the thirty persons, may have reached some other part of the coast, and not have been reported The next intelligence from Havana will be looked for with much interest by those who had friends on board the vessel.

WRECK OF THE SPANISH BRIG SAMMAMES.

The bark William A. Banks, Capt. BARTLETT, which arrived at this port yesterday from Cienfuegos, picked up on the 20th a boat containing the Captain, T. FERNENA, the mates, and nine of the crew of the Spanish brig Sammames, which had been abandoned on the 19th, she being in a sinking condition from stress of weather. She was bound for Cork from Cardenas. The captain, mates, and two of the seamen were subsequently put on board the Spanish bark Providencia, bound to Barcelona, and the rest of the men came to this port.

The Auburn Prison Revolt—Letter from Inspector Bailey.

State Prison Inspector BAILEY writes to the Albany Evening Journal in relation to the last revolt in Auburn State Prison. He justifies the extreme measures adopted by Warden KIRKPATRICK, believing that they were forced upon him by an issue which the convicts themselves had made up with their keepers. Mr. BAILEY adds:

"I am aware that a sentiment prevails in the outer world that State Prison convicts should be treated to 'moral suasion' alone, or if punished, by a means so softened and mild as to become next to no punishment at all. I am not disposed to speak lightly of the power of the law of kindness in its operations on even hardened characters, but if moral suasion fails when brought to bear with all the force of the outer world to keep men out of State Prison, is it not asking rather too much to require us to govern convicted villains by simply the coaxing and teasing process?"

Mr. BAILEY proceeds to discuss the nature of prison punishments; arguing the absolute necessity of exemplary discipline, regretting the tendency of the State Legislature to abridge the powers of prison officers in this regard, and taking blame to himself for having, as one of the Inspectors, consented to the prohibition of the shower-bath. He gives his opinion that the abolition of the shower-bath had much to do in encouraging the recent insurrection; and adds:

"The convicts have taken the liberty to infer from this fact that either timidity, or a sickly public sentiment would hold the officers back from severe measures, and therefore have dared to revolt and take the consequences. It is my deliberate conviction that the shower-bath is both a safe and salutary mode of punishment for convicts when in discreet hands—being sure to subdue if any punishment can subdue, and speedy in its operation. We need a punishment which will bring a convict to terms at once, so that the difficulty can be disposed of, and the man put back to his work, and this the shower-bath is adapted to accomplish, and this too without serious peril. * * *"

Three Murderers Executed at New-Orleans.

From the New-Orleans Picayune, 18th.

This morning HEINRICH HAAS, JOSEPH LINDSAY and PETER SMITH, all convicted of murder, suffered the penalty of death by hanging. At an early hour a large crowd besieged the gates of the prison, eagerly seeking to obtain a sight of the terrible spectacle. This morbid craving was not, however, satisfied, and none could obtain admittance. Shortly after 10 o'clock the three condemned men appeared, escorted by the Rev. Father DUFAU and his assistant, and officers of the prison. They were dressed in white, in their shirts and pants. the head covered with a white night-cap, and their hands tied behind their backs; each wore a crucifix suspended to a black ribbon around his neck. Their countenances were calm, even smiling. They took their seats on the fatal bench, and the hangman, a negro, disguised with a loose black domino and a mask, fixed the rope around their necks and disappeared in the cell behind.

LINDSAY, who is quite a young man, first spoke, and addressed the crowd with a clear and ringing voice. He acknowledged his crime, and said the penalty was but just; he had sinned against the laws of his country and the laws of his God, and he must die; but he blessed that death, for he was reconciled with his God; he begged the crowd to forgive him also; he thanked Captain FREMEAUX, Mr. REVVIL, and the inner keepers of the prison, for their kindness to him; he bid every one good bye, and hoped his example would not be lost. PETER SMITH spoke next, in nearly the same terms, but struggling with his emotion. HEINRICH HAAS, the oldest man of the three, was the last to speak. His features were lit, as in a loud and clear voice he addressed the attentive crowd. He said that drink was not the only incentive to crime, that every sinful appetite indulged in brought men by degrees to the worst crimes, and finally to the gallows. His ruin was caused by the sin of impurity; he warned all men to restrain and subdue their passions and not to deface the image of God. He was going to die of an awful death, and yet that death was not one thousand part what his crimes deserved. He was a great sinner, but as great as were his crimes, the goodness and mercy of his Saviour were greater, and that Saviour had pardoned him. He died with joy, he was happy, and preferred that death to life on this earth. He spoke long and feelingly, and, after bidding farewell to the people, began chanting a hymn with much power. While he spoke and sung, his two companions seemed to find new courage in his enthusiastic words, and preserved a perfect composure.

The Rev. Father DUFAU spoke a few parting words to each and presented them the crucifix, which they kissed repeatedly. Young LINDSAY burst out into an act of contrition, repeated by the two others, and was kissed on the cheek by Father DUFAU, who recited aloud an exhortation and gave his blessing to the three doomed men.

LINDSAY and SMITH died instantly, having had their necks broke, and a slight quiver of the frame was all that denoted the passage from life to death, but poor HAAS suffered longer; the noose had not been made tight enough and strangulation took place slowly. His legs moved convulsively, his whole frame shook, and the blood rushing into his face soon blackened it and trickled out of his ear.

Letter from Charles H. Weeks, and His Mother, Mrs. Roxana Weeks, of Montrose, Penn.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

DEAR SIR: When I returned to the stage some few weeks since, I announced as the cause, in a letter which originally appeared in the Troy Times, and was extensively copied throughout the country, the destitution and sufferings of my mother and sisters. A short time after, there appeared in the Montrose Republican, an article denying my assertion, and accusing me of the desire to "create a sensation for my own profit," &c. Acting upon this information, almost every paper in the country has denounced me, branding me as a liar, coward, hypocrite, and all the degrading epithets which could be applied to the most hardened wretch living. Now, Sir, I have borne all this until I could present facts, just as they are. Last Sunday, the 21st, I published a letter in the New-York Dispatch, and also in the Sunday Times, giving the exact position of my family. Not one editor has been generous enough to copy this letter. Read it yourself, then read the following letter from my mother, and judge how far I have deserved the persecutions which I have received:

MONTROSE, Saturday, Feb. 26, 1859.

To the Editors of the Republican, Montrose, Penn.:

MESSRS. EDITORS: In your comments on the letter published by my son, CHARLES H. WEEKS, I think you are rather severe. I do not know who has taken the responsibility of knowing so much about our family matters, as Mr. WEEKS, my husband, tells me he knew nothing about the article you published. There are wrong statements in it. CHARLES H. WEEKS has helped me and his sisters! We have received money from him through the Post-Office, last Summer, while he was in New-York. I also have received help from him a number of times while he stopped with us a few weeks last Summer,—help which I felt the benefit of at the time, and still appreciate his kindness, conscious as I was of his limited means. And more than all, he has helped me by his sympathising words and actions towards me and mine.

And now, Sirs, I wish to state some of the toils he saw me pass through, and see if you do not think he had some reason to feel for his mother. In the first place, my health has been such that I have not been able to walk a quarter of a mile at any time, in consequence of a spinal weakness. To say nothing of past years, I will commence with last Spring.

I have taken care of my family, five in number, done all of my work, except washing, made twenty-five men's shirts, twenty-one ladies' and misses dresses, sixteen skirts, twelve pair of gents pants, ten coats, two vests, besides teaching a class of six children half of each week day, and a class all day, the whole time, up to October 1st. During this time I have also done a large amount of sewing for my husband, shop cushions, mattresses, &c. Such facts as these were what troubled Charles. I have seen him appear to feel very much grieved over my toils and care. He also often spoke of his step-father, whom he said he thought was too much confined in his shop, at his advanced age. Though Mr. WEEKS is an industrious mechanic, yet he is toiling under the weight of three score years, incumbered with yearly payments on his place, oppressed as many others are with hard times, stock in his line of business high, money scarce, &c. &c. I have asked, and received permission of my husband to send this for publication. I have written it while lying in bed, where I have been closely confined for the last four weeks. The gold of California could not have induced me to do it, but to see my son wronged, perhaps ruined, by falsehood, is more than I can bear.

If you think this a fabrication the proof is but a few rods from your door!

As to the religion of my son, I think we had all better let God be the judge.

ROXANA WEEKS.

This letter, written by my mother, was sent to the editor of the Republican the same week that the article appeared in that paper against me, and they refused to publish it. My mother now sends me the letter, telling me to have it published in New-York, if there can be found an editor who is willing to stand up for justice. She adds, "if they want any proof of my character, my minister will sign with me!"

I also, on Monday last, sent the editor of the Republican a copy of the New-York Dispatch, which contained my explanation. I had not then received this letter from my mother, which was written in February last. You see the statements are the same as in my letters of the 21st. In one of those letters I used this language to said editor:

"Go, Sir, to my mother, read this letter, and if you can refute one word, or find in it one false assertion, I will sacrifice my life, my soul's eternal future for that one false impression even. If it is true, do me the justice to say so through your paper, or stand convicted of the lies you charge me with!"

He has not, so far as I can learn, made the reparation. In another part of the same letter I said, "if you would remove the stigma of coward which now rests on you, make the acknowledgment!"

I am very much inclined to think that the charges which he made against me, the public will now lay on him—the Independent Republican editor. But it is not yet too late for him to prevent an action for libel, by exhibiting some remnants of manhood, and speaking the truth!

There has also been charges against me to the effect that I never helped my mother. One Reverend gentleman published a letter in which he said, "You never have helped your mother, and you know it!" Who has spoken falsely, my mother, or this stranger to our family? * * * *

Now, a few words with regard to my future course. I did intend that my engagement in Syracuse should be my last upon the stage, as it would, if remunerative as my engagement in Troy, supply me with sufficient means for my wants and my mother's need, till I could procure some other employment. But these letters condemning me, and charging me with falsehood appeared against me just at this time, and created so much prejudice against me, that I was robbed of what I otherwise would have obtained. It is necessary for me to do something. I have deferred acting nearly as long as I can. My necessities are pressing hard upon me—my mother is sick. I do not wish to outrage the feelings of my enemies, or grieve my friends by going on the stage again. Place the present means before me, by giving me immediate employment, and I will not do it. But I will not let my mother suffer, or live upon nothing myself, during the time I am making arrangements for the future.

It has often been asked me if I intend giving up preaching? I answer No! Soon as I can procure a hall in this City I shall go to preaching the Gospel Christ taught, as I can understand it from the Bible—not as theologians would dictate, unless in accordance with my own consciousness of right. Creeds and sectarianism, in my opinion, are a secondary consideration. It will do to preach that when men practice truth, charity, love for his neighbor, speaking ill of none, persecuting none, not bearing false witness, and trying to honor God the Father, Christ the Son, and build up the cause of Christ on earth, rather than to sustain "our church and faith!"

Truly yours, CHARLES H. WEEKS.

N. B.—I have often been asked how it is that the name of my step-father is the same as my own? I answer, my mother formed a second marriage with the half-brother of my own father, bearing the same name.

Letters addressed No. 15 Front-street, New-York, care of JOHN CRIST, will reach me. C. H. W.

NEW-YORK, Saturday, March 26, 1859.

The Last of the Wanderer's Negroes.

From the Savannah Republican, March 23.

The following extract from a letter received yesterday, by the editor, from a highly respectable citizen of Telfair County, will be found to contain full particulars of the recent arrest of Africans in Worth County, and the circumstances under which they were discharged from custody by the United States Deputy Marshal:

"JOHN F. MCRAE, of this county, Deputy United States Marshal, having been instructed by the Marshal to capture any Africans he might find passing through the country, was informed that there were thirty-six in charge of one or two men, on their way to the Alabama line. He summoned a posse of ten men, some of our best citizens, pursued and overtook the negroes in Worth County, arrested them as Deputy United States Marshal under his instructions, and brought them to Jacksonville and put them in jail, and sent an express to the Marshal at Savannah reporting the arrest and his action in the matter. The Negroes remained here until the answer from the Marshal came, which stated he had telegraphed and written to the authorities at Washington, and had received no answer respecting the Africans then known to be in the country; that the Government knew of the Africans being in the State, and had given him no orders, and that his advice was to turn them loose and let them proceed on their way. When this letter came, and as the arrest had been made by the authority of the United States, and in good faith, the negroes were released; the person in charge of them paying for the provisions they consumed, and medical attention to those that were sick. One or two of those assisting in the arrest retook the negroes and demanded payment for their outlay and trouble, threatening to carry the Africans to Governor BROWN if it was not paid. A compromise was made to the satisfaction of the parties, and 'the last of the Wanderer's cargo' were allowed to depart in peace. The negroes disliked very much to leave, as they had been treated very kindly by the citizens."

THE CANADIAN GOVERNMENT AND THE CASE OF DEPUTY UNITED STATES MARSHAL TYLER.—On Thursday of last week an interesting debate occurred in the Canadian Parliament, which brought out the views and position of the Canadian Government on the case of Deputy United States Marshal TYLER, on trial for the shooting of Captain JONES, at Sarnia, last Fall. Mr. WALBRIDGE (Opposition) moved for copies of all correspondence which had taken place between the Government and the United States or Michigan authorities, on the subject of the surrender of Deputy Marshal TYLER. Attorney-General MACDONALD replied that the Ashburton Treaty, in this instance, would no doubt be acted upon. This was a peculiar case. The whole subject was under discussion between the authorities on both sides of the line, and correspondence had likewise been had with the Imperial Government in the matter. The motion was finally withdrawn.

The single rate of letter postage between the United States and the Kingdom of Denmark (by the Bremen or Hamburg mail) has been reduced from 25 to 15 cents—prepayment being optional as heretofore. This reduction goes into effect immediately.

[illegible] James Stephens for the Murder of [illegible] Wife by Poison—Verdict of Guilty—[illegible] to Commit the Hannah Family to Prison for Perjury.

EIGHTEENTH DAY.

COURT OF OYER AND TERMINER.

Before the Hon. Judge Roosevelt.

We announced, on Saturday, that after the Jury were locked up for the night on Friday they had agreed to find James Stephens guilty. It was then too late for the Court to receive their verdict, and they had to dispose themselves to sleep in the best manner they could. A bed was procured from French's Hotel for the sick Juror, Mr. Brush.

On Saturday morning, about 10½ o'clock, Judge Roosevelt took his seat on the bench. The prisoner, with his sister Sophia Hannah, his niece Maria Hannah, and his little daughter Bella, were already in Court. The room was crowded, and even more than the usual interest in the proceedings was manifested by the crowd outside, who could not gain admittance. The Jury were conducted into Court by the Sheriff and his deputies. The nature of the verdict they were about to deliver was pretty generally understood, and the appearance of Stephens showed that he, too, was no stranger to it.

The Clerk of the Court, Mr. Vandervoort, summoned the Jury to answer to their names. This done, he asked them if they had agreed upon a verdict. On the foreman's replying in the affirmative, the prisoner and the Jurors were told to rise. The Clerk proceeded with the usual formula:

"Prisoner, look upon the Jurors. Jurors, look upon the prisoner. How say you, gentlemen, do you find James Stephens, the prisoner at the Bar, guilty or not guilty?"

The foreman replied: "Guilty."

Stephens and his friends manifested no emotion. His little child—seven years old—was engaged in eating candy, and seemed perfectly happy. The Clerk proceeded:

"Gentlemen of the Jury, hearken to your verdict as it stands recorded. You say you find James Stephens guilty of the murder and felony with which he is charged. So say you all?"

The foreman nodded assent. Mr. Cushing demanded that the Jurors should be severally polled, which was done accordingly. The District-Attorney then addressed the Judge, and said that he rose to perform his last duty in that painful trial, which was to move for the judgment of the Court upon the prisoner.

Mr. Ashmead, rising with much feeling, wished to know if no decency whatever was to be preserved in the proceedings. There were many reasons why sentence should not now be passed. One was, that, as he would be prepared to show, the Jury had been tampered with. He would not then say by what person, but they had been tampered with. The Judge interrupted him, and remarked that the prisoner would not then be sentenced. Mr. Ashmead said he should move for an arrest of judgment and a new trial. Addressing the Jury, the Judge remarked that he should adjourn the Court till 11 o'clock on Tuesday morning, when it would meet for the purpose of passing sentence on Stephens, and for any other purpose that might be necessary.

The District-Attorney rose to vindicate himself from the assault made upon him on the previous morning by Mr. Ashmead. He was proceeding with some warmth, when the Judge said that there was no occasion for vindication. The Court had not considered that assault as of any moment whatever. It was too solemn an occasion for any discussion which was calculated to cause excitement.

The District-Attorney then moved that the Court should commit James Hannah, Sophia Hannah, and their daughters Isabella Bennett and Maria Hannah for perjury. Mr. Ashmead rose indignantly, and was about to protest against the motion, when the Judge interrupted him and said that it was not the intention of the Court to grant the motion at that time. The Jury were then discharged, and, after a brief interval, Stephens, attended by his child, was reconducted to the City Prison.

Decision in Admiralty.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT—March 25.

Before Judge Betts.

EXCEPTIONS—DAMAGES BY COLLISION—COST OF VESSEL—INTEREST.

Joseph W. Pharo et al. vs. Geo. Smith et al.—This case came up on exceptions to the Commissioner's report. The action was brought by the owners of the schooner J. W. Pharo to recover their damages occasioned by her being sunk with her cargo of coal, by a collision with the schooner William Smith, owned by the respondents, on April 9, 1855. The Court gave a decree for the libelants, and on a reference being had the Commissioner reported the damages, consisting of the value of the vessel and cargo at the time of her loss, with interest from that time to the date of his report.

The respondents took several exceptions to the report.

Held by the Court—That with reference to the exception that the respondents were not allowed to prove that vessels built at Tuckerton, N. J., where the Pharo was built, had a lower reputation for value than those built elsewhere, the evidence offered would be too indirect and speculative to be properly allowable. Such general rumor or reputation, without specific evidence impeaching the worth and efficiency of this vessel, in her construction or materials, ought not to be received as competent to overthrow or disparage direct proofs produced by the libelants to both those points. The Pharo herself had never been a subject of such common repute, and her qualities could not justly be tested upon notions so vague and impracticable.

That evidence as to the cost of building vessels in New-York and other places than Tuckerton, was rightly excluded. It has no reference to her cost except by that kind of implication which is too indirect to amount to a contradiction of the statements of witnesses valuing her upon their personal knowledge.

That on the evidence the finding of the Commissioner as to the value of the vessel and this item of the libelants' damage was correct.

That the libelants did not furnish the best evidence possible as to the amount of coal on board the Pharo. The evidence of those who weighed the coal or loaded it on board, or even the bills of lading, would be the natural and appropriate evidence to this fact and higher than that of the master of the vessel.

That the order of reference gave no directions to compute interest, and interest will not necessarily be allowed, even from the time the damages are liquidated.

That the exception to the allowance of interest is well taken, and this part of the report must be set aside. It must also be referred back to the Commissioner for a further report as to the quantity of cargo.

The other exceptions are overruled.

For libelants, Mr. Williams; for respondents, Messrs. Benedict, Burr & Benedict.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT.

DAMAGES TO CARGO—DUTY OF MASTER—INHERENT DEFECT.

John S. Lawrence vs. The Brig Lieut. Admiral Collomberg.—This was a libel filed against the brig to recover damages alleged to have been sustained by a cargo of fruit shipped on board the brig at Palermo, in December, 185—, to be carried to this port. The answer averred the full performance of the bill of lading, except that 414 boxes of lemons and oranges perished from inherent tendency to decay, and without fault or negligence on the part of the vessel.

Held by the Court—That the libelants have not proved that any wrongful act had been done by the master of the vessel, or that he had been guilty of any culpable omission of duty on the voyage, which caused the loss or deterioration of the cargo; or that the delay of the vessel in Lisbon, where she put in for necessary repairs, beyond the time reasonably required to obtain such repairs, was the immediate or proximate cause of the injuries which the fruit sustained on the voyage.

It being proved that the efforts of the master, in Lisbon, to preserve the fruit lost or deteriorated, were made in good faith, and under the advice of experienced and competent persons, and conformably to the best judgment of the master, the vessel is not responsible for the injuries the fruit may have received, even if the means used to save it were not the most suitable and well judged.

The master was quasi agent of both parties, in relation to the cargo found in a perishing condition on board at Lisbon, and his acts, honestly put forth under any emergency, with intent to the benefit of both, are to be favorably construed in his behalf against the complaints of either.

The fruit being proved to be inherently subject to decay, and the bill of lading being qualified with that condition, the vessel is not responsible for its sound delivery, without evidence of some misfeasance of the master, which set in action or aggravated that testimony.

Libel dismissed, with costs.

For libelants, Messrs. Beebe, Dean and Donohue; for claimants, Messrs. Owen and Vose.

COLLISION IN THE EAST RIVER.

Patrick F. Brady vs. The Steamship Florida.—This was a libel filed by the owner of the barge Owen Gorman, to recover the damages occasioned to her by a collision with the steamship, on Aug. 13, 1857. The barge was loaded with coal, and was being towed up the East River, lashed on the larboard side of the steam-tug New-York. The tug was on the New-York side of the river, going very slow, and the steamer was going the same way, at much greater speed, and, attempting to pass on the larboard side, struck the barge.

Held by the Court—That the steamship was in fault in not navigating as near the middle of the river as possible, as required by statute.

That on the evidence there was no movement of the tug to cross the steamship's bows, and it was therefore the duty of the steamship to take measures to pass the tug safely. The tug having the lead, was entitled to select her own route.

That on the evidence there was no fault in the tug.

Decree for libelants with a reference.

For libelants, Messrs. Burrill, Davison & Burrill; for claimants, Messrs. Beebe, Dean & Donohue.

GOODS CONCEALED—REVENUE LAWS.

The United States vs. One hat box containing ten gold chains, &c.—This was a libel of information filed to forfeit the goods as having been concealed on the steamship Fulton, contrary to the provisions of section 68 of the Act of Congress of March 2d, 1799, no duties having been paid or secured to be paid thereon.

The owner of the goods alleged that he prepared on board the ship an entry of the goods; that the invoice was placed in the hat-box and he was ready and willing to pay the duties thereon, but before he was able to do so the goods were forfeited. He also objected to the jurisdiction of the Court, claiming that the goods were seized on land and not on board ship.

Evidence was given that the owner denied to the Custom House Officer that he had any dutiable articles, but on searching, some gold chains were found in his inside pocket and parcels of jewelry in secret compartments of the hat box. The goods were not specifically examined until they were taken to the Collector's Office. The claimant was a foreigner and spoke English imperfectly, but understood it well and had been 10 or 12 years in this country.

Held by the Court—That whether the goods were found on land or on shipboard was not put in question by the answer, and the evidence is clear that the seizure was made on shipboard.

That the Court has jurisdiction of the case.

That the act of concealment of the goods by the claimant within the provisions of that section of the statute is established by the proofs.

Decree of condemnation and forfeiture of the goods.

For the United States, Mr. Hunt; for claimant Messrs. Lane & Roelker.

SUPREME COURT—Special Term—March 26.

Before Justice Clerke.

Widening of Reade-street.—This is an application to confirm the report of the Commissioners of Estimate and Assessment appointed in the matter of widening Reade-street on its north side and west of Broadway. There was a similar proceeding for widening Reade-street, east of Broadway, the report in which was lately confirmed by Justice Davies. The application for confirmation in the present case has been strenuously opposed by the various property-owners whose interests are affected.

The objections to the report are chiefly these:

1. That while the widening was confined to the west side of Broadway, the assessments had extended over and beyond the east side, so as to cover many lots which had already been made to suffer in the previous improvement.

2. In behalf of St. Andrew's Church, eight feet of which in front has been cut away, demolishing the altar, pulpits, &c., and which has been assessed $5,000, it is urged that the Church property ought not to be assessed for these improvements on the same principles with that devoted to secular uses, but should be shown favor.

3. Comptroller Haws was one of the Commissioners. It is urged that by accepting the office of Comptroller he incapacitated himself from serving as Commissioner, else an entire Board of Commissioners might be composed of City officials.

4. The Commissioners were nominated and appointed by the Justices of the Supreme Court. It is urged that they cannot be lawfully so appointed: that the statute requires they should be nominated by the Corporation and appointed by the Justices of the Supreme Court.

5. There are, also, many objections to the awards made, as respects individual lots, chiefly on the ground that the same assessed are disproportionate.

The argument has occupied two days; a large number of counsel being engaged.

James T. Brady for the Corporation; T. James Glover for St. Andrew's Church and the Anderson property; General Sanford, H. C. Hayner, J. Mansfield Davies, Wm. M. Evarts and Charles Tracy for other property owners.

Before Justice Ingraham.

Robert Davis vs. William Hargreaves.—Motion granted unless the plaintiff in ten days charges the defendant in execution.

The New-York and New-Haven Railroad Company vs. Robert Schuyler et al.—The motion to frame separate issues, to be tried by a jury, are denied. Costs in each case to abide event.

The Same vs. John H. Dykes et al.—Motion denied; costs to abide event.

SUPERIOR COURT—General Term.

The Woodruff and Beach Iron Works vs. Henry A. Chittenden (and four other suits.)—Judgment affirmed, with costs.

The President, &c., of the City Bank of New-Haven vs. Simon Perkins.—Judgment for plaintiffs on the verdict.

John Turner et al vs. Morgan Pindar.—New trial granted on terms.

Before Justice Moncrief.

William Small vs. Henry L. Bulkley, impld.—Ordered that plaintiffs file security for defendant's costs herein within twenty days from service of a copy of this order upon him. All proceedings of plaintiffs to be stayed until filing of such security and the sureties therein justify, if excepted to; defendant to have $16 costs of this motion to abide event.

Neil M. Hogland vs. Theodon Salters et al.—Ordered that Tracy, Walt & Olmstead be and they are hereby substituted as attorneys for the defendants in this action.

Francis H. Salters vs. William O'Brien et al.—Referred to William Kent, as sole Referee.

The Park Bank vs. Robert Davis—Motion granted.

Before Justice Hoffman.

Clarke C. Wilson vs. Albert Lewis and wife—Ordered that she be allowed to appear and put in her answer in this action, separate and apart from her husband, Albert Lewis, and be co-defendant herein.

MARINE COURT.

A TOTAL ECLIPSE.

A total eclipse of this Court is expected to occur on Monday. This is a rare phenomenon in the judicial firmament; as the statute requires the Court to be held every judicial day. It so happens, however, that the illness of all three of the Justices will probably prevent the Court from being in session for a day or two. Justice McCarthy has been for some little time traveling for his health. Justice Maynard has been for several days detained at home by indisposition, and now Justice Thompson is obliged by the same cause to be absent. In a day or two, however, Justice Maynard expects to resume his seat.

SURROGATE'S COURT.

Hence, the current movements are restricted. Sales have been reported of 10,500 bbls., within our revised range.

Rye is in demand at steady rates; sales 1,500 bushels at 95c. ₱ bushel; 1,500 bushels Rye Malt were sold at 90c. ₱ bushel, 90 days' credit. Barley has been pretty freely dealt in at uniform prices; sales 26,500 bushels at 63c.@85c. for inferior to choice State; and 73½c.@75c. for fair Canada ₱ bushel. Oats are in demand at our quotations. Canada, 61c.@62½c.; Western, 60c.@62c.; State, 57c. @59c.; Jersey and Pennsylvania, 51c.@55c., and Southern, at 48c.@54c. ₱ bushel.

GUNNY BAGS AND BAGGING—Sales in Boston 200 bales light Bags at 9c. each; and 475 bales Bagging at 12½c.@13c. ₱ yard.

HAY—Sales 400 bales North River at 65c.@75c. ₱ 100 ℔s.

HEMP—The demand is limited; prices are nominally unaltered. Sales in Boston, 200 bales Manila at 7c. ₱ ℔., 6 months' credit.

HIDES—The week's business Messrs. H. D. Hall & Co. notice thus: "The inactivity noticed in our last, was succeeded by an active demand; and, with extensive transactions, the market has ruled buoyantly throughout the week. Sales have been large, at full prices, embracing all the Rio Grandes, several parcels of Buenos Ayres, &c., and nearly our entire stock of common Hides, together with about 5,000 Orinocos, to arrive. The stock of common Hides in first hands is extremely light, and only a moderate quantity expected. The receipts have been to a fair extent, but are exceeded by the sales, leaving a limited supply on hand, composed chiefly of the recent arrivals of Buenos Ayres. The expected receipts are only moderate, and with a fair demand from the trade we cannot look for any material accumulation in the stock before Summer. Prices have undergone no material change since last week, although they are decidedly firmer. Upper Leather Stock—The market is almost bare of all descriptions, with an active inquiry. Prices are without alteration. Calcutta Hides—Buffaloes are in demand and very scarce. Cows, if of prime quality, sell readily at our quotations, while inferior qualities are neglected. Green Salted Hides of all descriptions are in good request. Receipts have been 33,218 Hides from foreign ports, as follows: 17,185 Buenos Ayres, ex Mercy Ellen; 6,325 Savanilla, &c., ex Restless; 7,197 from Hamburg, ex Borussia; 822 St. Domingo, ex Kate, &c.; 1,261 Porto Cabello, ex Amy Chase; 428 from London, ex Liverpool; and 34 bales from Bremen, 5,784 Hides from New-Orleans, 1,552 Texas, &c., 433 Southern, 5,357 from neighboring ports. Total Coastwise, 13,126. Total Foreign and Coastwise, 46,344. Import since 1st inst. has been 164,562 Foreign and 45,608 Coastwise. Total, 210,170 Hides. Sales during the week have been 73,500 Hides. The stock on hand of Ox and Cow Hides is 46,000, (same time last year, 252,200—year before, 48,500.) 5,500 Buenos Ayres Horse, 126 bales Calcutta Kips. The stock includes 29,200 Dry Buenos Ayres and Montevideo; 6,300 Dry Savanilla and Bogota; 3,000 Dry Texas; 900 Dry Mexican, (via New-Orleans;) 800 Dry Southern; 1,000 Dry Western; 600 Dry and Dry Salted Maracaibo; 1,900 Dry and Dry Salted Porto Rico; 1,500 Dry and Dry Salted West Indies; 400 Dry and Dry Salted Para; 400 Dry and Dry Salted Chili and Peruvian; 126 bales Calcutta Cow; 5,500 Dry Buenos Ayres Horse."

IRON—Is in slack demand, and Scotch Pig can now be purchased at $27 50@$29, cash and time, ₱ ton.

LEAD—Pig is not attracting much attention, though foreign is obtainable at $5 62½@$5 75, ₱ 100 ℔s.

LEATHER—The week's movements in Sole, Messrs. Hull & Co. review thus: "The demand continues good, but the lightness of our stock restricts the sales to a great extent. Prices are well sustained, and in some cases, an advance of ½c. has been realized. The trouble among the laborers on the Erie Railroad has detained a large quantity of Leather at Piermont, which would have otherwise been in. Our stock is at present lighter than it has been for a long time previous, and consists chiefly of over-weights, which is not very salable at this season. Upper in rough is scarce and sought after. Prices are much higher in proportion than for Sole Leather. Oak tanned sells freely at our quotations, and is in limited supply. We quote: Oak Slaughter and Salted, good light, 31c.@33c.; Oak Slaughter and Salted, good middle, 31c.@34c.; Oak Slaughter and Salted, good heavy, 29c.@32c.; Oak light, Southern, 28c.@31c.; Oak heavy, for Banding, 29c.@32c.; Oak Spanish, good all weights, 29c.@31c.; Oak Cropped, 38c.@40c.; Hemlock, Buenos Ayres, &c., good light, 25c.@25½c.; Hemlock, Buenos Ayres, &c., good middle, 25½c.@26½c.; Hemlock, Buenos Ayres, &c., good heavy, 23½c.@24½c.; Hemlock, Orinoco, &c., good light, 23½c.@24c.; Hemlock, Orinoco, &c., good middle, 24½c.@25c.; Hemlock, Orinoco, &c., good heavy, 22c.@23c.; Hemlock, Orinoco and Buenos Ayres, damaged, all weights, 21c.@23c.; Hemlock, Orinoco and Buenos Ayres, poor, all weights, 14½c.@15½c.; Hemlock, Slaughter, in rough, 28c.@32c., on 6 months' credit."

MOLASSES—Sales 300 bbls. New-Orleans at 39c.@40c., and 50 hhds., part Cuba, at 22c.@23c. ₱ gallon.

Cut Meats are in good demand, including Hams, at 8½c.@9½c., and Shoulders at 6¾c.@7c. ₱ ℔. Bacon is inactive at from 8½c.@11c. ₱ ℔. Lard continues plenty and heavy; sales 1,000 tcs. and bbls., in lots, at from 11½c.@11¾c., chiefly within the range, ₱ ℔. Beef is in request and is buoyant; sales to-day, 325 bbls., in lots, at $9 50@$11 50 for repacked Western Mess; $12 50 @$13 25 for extra do.; $8 25@$9 62½ for Country Mess; $6 50@$7 25 for do. Prime, ₱ bbl.; Prime Mess Beef, $17@$20 ₱ tc. Beef Hams, $14 50@$17 50 ₱ bbl. RICE—Sales to-day 75 tcs., in lots, at $3 62½@$4 75 ₱ 100 ℔s.

SEEDS—Clover is very dull, and quoted ½@1c. ₱ ℔. lower, with sales to-day of 300 bags on terms not ascertained. Flax has not varied. Timothy finds ready buyers at $2 25@2 75 ₱ bushel. In Boston, 2,000 bags Calcutta Linseed have been sold at about $1 68 ₱ bushel. In Philadelphia, Cloverseed has been less sought after at from $4 75@$6 ₱ bushel.

THE DRIGGS PATENT PIANO-FORTE—(W. V. WALLACE.)

Its tones are the fullest, most sonorous and pure.

It is the most durable, and will remain longer in tune than any other piano forte.

It is built upon a solid iron frame or bed plate—the whole case forms a vibrating shell, with an upper and lower sounding-board, like the violin.

"It is the best piano-forte existing," and is recommended by Thalberg, Gottschalk, Wm. H. Fry, M. Strakosch, Maretzek, Albert H. Wood, Gustave Eckardt, Wm. Mason, H. Wollenhaupt, and many other musical celebrities.

HYATT'S PATENT LIGHTS.

A CARD HAVING BEEN ISSUED

TO THE PUBLIC

By parties who frankly confess that they do not pay me for my invention, I avail myself of this opportunity to advertise the names of those who do. The following persons, only, are licensed under my patents in this City:

George R. Jackson & Co.

J. B. & W. W. Cornell & Co.

S. B. Althause & Co.

The law is, that a person who purchases or uses a patented article is equally liable for infringement with the maker of it. The "makers" having fairly notified the "users" of their intention not to pay, the "users" have only themselves to blame if I collect my tariff of them—as I shall certainly do. THADDEUS HYATT.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

We are still without any notification of the arrival of the expected European steamers, the Niagara and the Alps, at Halifax. The line of telegraph between Bangor and points further east was reported down last night, with no prospect of immediate repair. The latest advices from Halifax are to Saturday evening, at which time the steamers had not been heard from.

Among the passengers by the steamer Karnak, (Br.,) which arrived at this port from Havana and Nassau about 1 o'clock on Saturday morning, is Mr. SAMUEL DUNBAR, who brings the painful intelligence that a British gun-boat, the Joseur, struck a rock and was lost near Jamaica on the 4th inst. The vessel sinking rapidly, a raft was constructed, and the whole crew, sixty in number, went upon it, with a scanty supply of provisions and water. A heavy gale coming on, ten of their number were swept off and lost, when the remainder took to the two boats; nineteen going in one boat with the captain, and thirty in the other with the second master. The captain's boat was thrown ashore near a port on the South side of Cuba, but the other boat and thirty souls had not been heard from. Mr. DUNBAR states that the intelligence reached Havana just before the steamer left, and hence it had not been made public. The Joseur is a screw steamer of 80-horse power, commanded by Lieutenant JOHN B. SCOTT.

By the bark Venus, which arrived at this port yesterday, we have advices from Venezuela to the 11th inst. Serious disturbances are again reported. The Province of Coro has declared in favor of a Federal Government, and taken up arms. General TAMORA, with several exiles, had left Curaçoa to join their friends in Coro—the former to take command. A revolt was also momentarily expected at Maracaibo, and, though the rest of the provinces are reported as quiet, there was little doubt that a general revolution would grow out of the dissatisfaction with the present Republic. General PAEZ was still sick.

Intelligence from Porto Rico announces the rapid filling up of the subscription to the Stock of the new Bank. The annual tour of the Captain-General was to commence on the 11th. Great preparations were making for his reception. The slaves captured at Humacao were declared emancipados.

Considerable business was done in a quiet way by the Legislature on Saturday—principally, however, of no general importance. In the Senate, the bill fixing the duties and salaries of the Police Clerks in this City was passed. The bill reappropriating certain moneys for the completion of the canals was also passed. The New-York Health bill was made the special order for to-morrow. In the Assembly a great number of private bills were passed. The New-York Tax bill was referred to the first Committee of the Whole.

On Saturday a second death occurred from the recent poisoning at the boarding house, at the corner of Fourth-avenue and Fourteenth-street. The second victim is Mr. FAYETTE ROBINSON, a native of Virginia and a magazine writer of some note. The others who were poisoned, with the exception of a Spanish boarder named CONALIJO, are entirely recovered. The Coroner's inquest, which was resumed on Saturday, will be continued to-day. The report, by Dr. DOREMUS, of the result of his examination of the stomachs of the deceased, is the only important remaining evidence to be taken. Mrs. BETHAM was buried on Saturday. The remains of Mr. ROBINSON will be taken to Richmond, Va., where his friends reside, for interment. He had long been an invalid.

Two policemen of the Sixth Ward are charged with having, through undue violence, caused the death of a man named BERNARD KERRIGAN. It is alleged that they arrested the deceased when there was no occasion for it, and that on the way to the Station-house they hammered and punched him with their clubs, producing rupture and inflammation of the intestines, which resulted in his death. The case is undergoing examination before one of the Coroners.

Charles Sturgis, the young man who was shot on Friday morning at the eating saloon No. 36 Bowery, died yesterday at the City Hospital. The Coroner will hold an inquest to-day. John Pfomer, who shot him, is still detained in custody, to await the result of the inquisition.

The trial of STEPHENS has ended at last. On Saturday—the eighteenth day since it commenced—the jury, having been locked up for the night, returned into Court with a verdict of Guilty. STEPHENS, though he evidently labored under emotion, preserved an appearance of calmness. The District-Attorney applied to the Court for immediate judgment, but the Judge refused the application, and named Tuesday (to-morrow) as the day on which sentence would be passed. Mr. WATERBURY then moved for the committal of STEPHENS' relations, the Hannah family, for perjury. The Judge replied that he would not commit them at present. And so this trial, one of the most singular on record, came to an end.

The Report of the City Inspector for the week ending on Saturday, the 26th, exhibits a slight increase in the number of deaths over the week previous. The entered number of deaths for the week was 419 against 409 the week before, but 57 less than during the corresponding week of 1858.

There was a meeting in behalf of the Southern Aid Society last evening, in the Cooper Institute. The Rev. Mr. STILES made an address, and a respectable collection was taken up.

The sales of Cotton on Saturday did not exceed 1,000 bales at unchanged prices. A moderate business was transacted in Flour and Wheat at uniform rates. Barley and Corn were in good request as were likewise Pork, Cut Meats and Sugars. The movements in other branches of trade were restricted. The total number of vessels of all classes in port was 589.

BUYING STEAMSHIPS SHORT.—In the last budget of news from the Rio de la Plata, comes the word that none of the steamers chartered by the Navy Department had yet arrived at the mouth of that river. They were long enough out to have doubled Cape Horn; yet the main squadron had passed up the Paranà, and was closely approaching the scene of operations, diplomatic or otherwise, at the moment when the advices assure us that nothing had been heard of the supplementary vessels. Whether they are still drifting toward their destination, or whether a thousand fathoms deep, they rest where the "Orinoco rushes to the main," is a question which time will presently settle.

The Secretary of the Navy was authorized at the last session of Congress to convert the charter-party of these inconspicuous steam-tugs into an absolute purchase. It is also intimated that the Secretary is in haste to complete the bargain. In view however of the non-appearance of the boats, and of the multitudinous doubts sorrounding their fate, it will certainly be wiser to know whether the subject matter of the transaction be in existence, before signing the papers and paying the money. Of the absolute valuelessness of the things, if they be still afloat, it does not become us to speak. They were unseaworthy when they departed, a very boguey to the underwriters, and they are probably no worthier after their stormy voyage. But the Secretary is committed to the business, and all that can be asked is a suspension of action until there be some hope of getting what he buys.

The Stephens Trial—The Verdict and Conduct of Counsel.

The public mind was not prepared for a verdict of guilty in the case of STEPHENS. It cannot be claimed that he has been proved beyond all doubt to have murdered his wife. The evidence is wholly circumstantial, and far from being perfectly conclusive. It has established a probability that the woman was poisoned,—and that it was done by her husband, though other parties are involved in the same net-work of suspicious circumstances which was gathered about him. But in view of his position and character,—and especially in view of previous acquittals or failures to convict under much stronger evidence than was here submitted, there is a very general surprise and something very like dissatisfaction in the public mind at his conviction.

It is not our purpose, however, to dwell upon this aspect of the case at present. We intend merely to say one or two words as to the demeanor of the gentlemen employed in conducting it. There is a good deal of allowance to be made, we admit, for snappishness and ill-humor displayed in an investigation lasting seventeen days, in a crowded room, the result of which was to affect the life of the party on trial; but after making all the deductions which the gravity of the occasion, the foulness of the atmosphere, and the tediousness of the proceedings call for, there still remains a large mass of bad taste, and bad manners, insolence and ribaldry to be censured, and we may add, to be atoned for. We recur to this subject thus frequently, because we would not have the public lose sight of the fact that the manner in which laws are administered is of quite as much importance as the laws themselves. The moral effects of the deportment of the Bench and Bar, in criminal cases, upon the public mind, is almost as great as that produced by the punishment of the culprit. There ought unquestionably to be some sort of congruity between the nature of a duty and the conduct of those engaged in performing it. The moral sense of mankind is outraged by quarreling or merry-making at a funeral, by levity in the pulpit, by a fight at a wedding. The necessity for being grave, decorous, calm and courteous on certain occasions more than others, is of course not capable of mathematical demonstration; but it is prescribed by all our better instincts, and these instincts lie at the base of so much of what is most valuable in civilized society, that it is not necessary to look for any better authority.

It is hardly possible to conceive an occasion more solemn in all its incidents and bearings, than a court of justice conducting a trial for murder. There is no occasion in which man attempts to perform a duty so nearly divine, as that which devolves on a judge in such a case. There is no charge more weighty than that which is imposed on the counsel. The burden of responsibility which rests on the shoulders of a general on the eve of a battle which is to decide the fate of a nation, seems weightier because it affects a larger number of persons. The fate of millions depends on the steadiness of his nerves, the quickness of his eye, and on the clearness of his brain. But he may bear it worthily and well, as MARLBOROUGH bore it, without ever calling into play one of the higher qualities of his nature;—without a spark of love either for justice or mercy, without honor, without honesty, without self-control, without a particle of regard either for the interests of society at large, or for those of the unfortunates, who march on death at his word. But judges and counsel who are trying a man for his life, have something more to do than strain every fibre of their brains for victory. Besides taking care that the prisoner suffers no wrong, they have to see that the triumphs of the law are worthily achieved. Lawyers do not meet in court-rooms merely to get a man hanged, or to get him acquitted, by hook or by crook. If the investigation which is to acquit or condemn him, is not conducted with decency and sobriety, with an absence of outbursts of coarse passion, and of ribald abuse, the good effect of it is altogether lost. We say this with the more confidence, because we believe the interests of society are quite as much served by an acquittal after a calm and laborious examination into the facts, as by a condemnation. The means, under a variety of aspects, possess fully as much importance as the result. It is of as great moment that the innocent be inspired with confidence, as that the guilty be struck with terror.

Judging from the language of the counsel on both sides engaged in the Stephens trial, and particularly of those for the defence, no men could be more impressed than they with the gravity of the occasion. Their speeches were copiously interlarded with those offensive and vulgar appeals to heaven and adjurations of the Deity, upon which men of moderate powers in the pathetic department of oratory, mainly rely to convince their audience of their own sincerity and of the solemnity of their performances. Mr. CUSHING in particular left nothing undone which this species of rhetoric can do to make everybody believe that he was overwhelmed by his sense of the awful nature of the task he was executing. Mr. ASHMEAD did not make quite so much use of the "melting mood," and was somewhat more chary of his appeals to the Almighty in attestation of his own devotion to Mr. STEPHENS; but he sought to convey his deep sense of the grave nature of the proceedings, by the frequent use of illustrations drawn from the great days and great lights of the Bar. He overhauled the forensic fasti of England to make manifest his own notions of what a lawyer's demeanor ought to be on so momentous an occasion. But we regret to say that neither of them, during the whole course of the trial, afforded any better proof than their own somewhat frantic ejaculations, of the fact that they were acting either under the influence of religious emotions or of great legal traditions. In the conduct of the case they seemed to have no very exalted ideal whatever before their mind's eye. Mr. CUSHING's language and manner to the Court, from first to last, were most unbecoming. He contradicted the Judge flatly; he insisted rudely, after the rulings had been made; and his gestures and tones were even more improper than his language itself. If Judge ROOSEVELT had done even a small part of his duty—if he had done what any of the English courts, whose example Mr. ASHMEAD is so fond of citing, would certainly have done under similar circumstances—he would have deprived Mr. STEPHENS of Mr. CUSHING's valuable services, and left that distinguished lawyer to compound climaxes and mix antitheses in Eldridge-street Jail, before the trial had progressed very far.

Of the bearing of the counsel on both sides towards one another there is almost as much to be said in condemnation as of their bearing towards the Judge. Mr. ASHMEAD's speech was in great part a personal denunciation of the District-Attorney. Mr. SHAFFER was abused for having "the price of blood in his pocket," simply because, having been the counsel of young BELL, that is, of the person, of all others in the world most interested in having STEPHENS punished, if he be really guilty, he has been most properly employed to aid the prosecution. Charges of almost every imaginable species of baseness were freely bandied about. Wranglings innumerable, not so much on points of law as touching the base motives of the lawyers themselves, occupied one-half of every day. The Judge seemed to have been planted on the bench by the disputants below in order that they might treat the public to the spectacle of his utter insignificance, and their own unbounded license. If STEPHENS be clearly and finally convicted, the effect may be salutary; but we doubt if the general confidence in the administration of justice has gained anything, in the minds of the public at large, by the spectacle of his trial. We doubt if any of those who witnessed it have been profoundly impressed by the majesty of the law, or thoroughly satisfied that a search after truth, conducted with the aid of abuse and billingsgate, is very likely to be attended with success.

Partisanship in New-Jersey.

The Legislature of New-Jersey, at the session which closed on Wednesday last, were obliging enough to furnish a very striking illustration of the extreme partisanship that marks and disgraces American politics. The facts are interesting enough to deserve distinct record.

The Constitution adopted by a State Convention held in 1844, retained that peculiar trait of the English judicial scheme—a separate jurisdiction in equity. The Court of Chancery was invested with all the usual attributes of an equitable tribunal. It preserves its practice in the foreclosure of mortgages; its authority as a Prerogative Court, in matters relative to the inheritance of estates; and the Chancellor, ex-officio, presides over the Court of Errors and Appeals. The new Constitution fixed the period of seven years as the term of office for this dignified position; assigning the power of appointment to the Governor, "by and with the advice and consent of the Senate." The gentleman first nominated was Mr. OLIVER S. HALSTED, (Whig,) whose time expiring in 1852, at a moment when the control of the State was in the hands of the Democratic Party, Mr. BENJAMIN WILLIAMSON (Dem.) was appointed to the office. In the ensuing year the term of Mr. HENRY W. GREEN (Whig) as Chief-Justice expired, and the same Democratic influence predominating, every effort was made to find a successor belonging to the Democratic Party. The effort was unavailing. The position was tendered to the only qualified lawyers on that side of politics, and was promptly declined. It was conceded that Chief-Justice GREEN was unquestionably the most competent person that could be found; it was admitted, without contradiction in any quarter, that he had wholly secluded himself from the arena of politics, since his elevation to the bench; and upon these considerations, and in the absence of a worthy successor, he was nominated and confirmed. It is quite certain that this honor would not have been conferred had Mr. GREEN been a declared partisan.

The term of Mr. WILLIAMSON expiring with the present year, it became the duty of Governor NEWELL to nominate to the Senate his successor. Elected to his position by the Opposition, it was fair to expect that the Governor would look to the Opposition ranks for his candidate. There was nothing in the character or the legal ability of Chancellor WILLIAMSON to recommend him for reappointment. A score of gentlemen were to be found at the bar of New-Jersey with higher qualifications for the place. But besides this merely negative view, there was the positive fact, that while holding the highest judicial office in the State he had never ceased to hold tenaciously to every party tie and obligation; to labor zealously for the Democratic cause; and to allow himself to be regarded as the especial leader of the intriguing and profligate regency which ruled the Administration party in New Jersey. Under these circumstances Governor NEWELL nominated Mr. ABRAHAM O. ZABRISKIE, a gentleman eminently fitted for the place. The nomination was not confirmed, the Administration having a majority in the Senate. The Governor substituted other names of Opposition candidates, wholly unexceptionable, and still the Senate refused to confirm. He again nominated Mr. ZABRISKIE, and threw upon the Senate the responsibility of defeating an appointment, but without effect. The position was taken, that the Democratic party having re-appointed GREEN, the Opposition was bound to re-appoint WILLIAMSON; and that no other nomination would be approved by the Senate. In other words, reversing the Constitutional direction, the Senate proposed to nominate a chancellor, by and with the consent of the Governor; an assumption which the Governor could not tolerate. The session has been but an anxious expectation for one or the other party to give way. At the last moment, the Governor transmitted nine names for the place, all of which were rejected; and the Senate adjourned sine die.

The result of this obstinacy is very serious. The judicial system of the State is disorganized. There is no longer a Court of Chancery. The suits pending in equity must be suspended, and the suitors sent their ways for a year. There will be no such thing as foreclosing a mortgage during that period. The testamentary and prerogative business of the Court will be thrown into inextricable confusion. The Court of Appeals will be without its constitutional head, and the Court of Pardons without one of its members. And all this mischief because the two branches of the appointing power are of opposite parties, and neither will yield its party preferences to the exactions of the other.

On the 9th of March Governor NEWELL sent in a message renominating Mr. ZABRISKIE, whom the Senate had once rejected, and claiming for himself the sole and exclusive right of nomination. He said it would be, in his judgment, a violation of the Constitution for him to waive this right or permit the Senate to interfere in any way with its free exercise:—they were bound, in his opinion, to consent to the appointment of any man, of suitable qualifications, whom he might nominate,—and they would be held responsible for any failure to fill the office which might result from their refusal to do so, as his action in the matter would not be changed. The Governor attempted to strengthen his position by claiming that being elected directly by the popular vote, he represented a majority of the people in the State, while the Senate only represented majorities in the several counties: and that his voice should therefore be deemed the most potential. This claim is utterly untenable and is quite unworthy of the Governor. The Senate replied at some length, and with considerable warmth to his Message, repelling its aspersions upon the motives of the Senate, and asserting their right and duty to judge of the propriety of the Governor's nominations and to act upon their own conviction of the qualifications of his nominees. They charge indirectly also that the Governor had departed from the usages of the State in insisting upon making a partisan appointment to a judicial office. Except, however, in the case of Judge GREEN, the Democratic Party when in power has uniformly filled every open judicial position with its own members.

It would be too much to assert for either party in this controversy entire freedom from blame. Technically the Governor is right,—the power of nominations resting exclusively with him. But it is equally indisputable that the power of consenting to the appointment rests with the Senate. The Governor did not attempt to coerce the Senate into consenting to the appointment of any one man,—he gave them a very large list from which to make their selection. But he nominated no member of their party,—and therefore they refused to confirm any one of his nominations. It is one of those cases in which party interests are considered paramount to the public good. Such cases have often happened hitherto, and will beyond all question often happen again.

Hoe and the Herald.

The proprietors of Barnum's Museum should take steps at once to ascertain the name of the enterprising individual who, during the week ending Saturday, March 26, became the purchaser of that lovely rural Paradise, known as "Washington Heights." For that such a person exists there can be no doubt. The New-York Herald, of Sunday, March 27, contains, as by a diligent examination any man may satisfy himself, not one word of allusion to the beauties, blessings and general availability of that never-to-be-sufficiently-admired, and hitherto-by-the-house-of-BENNETT-exclusively-populated spot. For more than a year past, the editorial columns of the Sunday Herald have been given up to Washington Heights. They have been adorned with maps of Washington Heights; they have been enriched with historical reminiscences of Washington Heights; from Washington Heights the world and its ways have been surveyed "with comprehensive view," empires weighed in the balance, treaties torn or mended, and the fate of man decided with hebdomadal solemnity.

Of all this there is now an end. Having disposed of "Washington Heights" doubtless to some distinguished financier grown opulent by dealing in Parker Vein or Potosi stock, or to some enterprising merchant who has outstripped his competitors by using the channel of Plum-Gut, the Herald has now taken the printing-press into consideration, and proposes to revolutionize the world by means of a nice little catechism of questions supposed to be propounded by the London Times, and answers supposed to be made by the New-York Herald, the upshot of which is the complete humiliation of John Bull's stupid workmen, who "appear to be considered a part of the material on which they labor," and the exceeding exaltation of that "vast establishment of the New-York Herald," in which we are assured that there is "no difficulty in finding, from the editorial rooms down to the newsboys' folding-room, one person to take the place of another, in cases of emergency or accident of any description." So far as the latter clause of this statement is concerned, we have no doubt the assertion is strictly true. In fact, we are decidedly inclined to think that if the editor of the Herald should by an "emergency or accident of any description" be detained from his post, for a number of years, his particular place in the "vast establishment" might, with considerable advantage to all parties concerned, be filled by any one of the bright boys in the folding-room whose native honesty has not yet "suffered a sea-change" from the perilous stuff in which he daily deals.

Neither would we cast a shadow of suspicion on a wondrous tale which the Herald tells us in this connection, that "Dr. HAMMEL's visit to the Herald office had a paramount influence in abolishing serfdom in Russia." Nothing can be more natural than that anybody should have gone away from the Herald office disgusted with serfdom and all its attendant imbecilities and venalities; and as it is well known that Dr. HAMMEL was simply the Czar ALEXANDER in disguise, who visited the Herald office as the great PETER visited the Dutch dockyards, future chroniclers will unquestionably date the imperial ukases of freedom from the northwest corner of Fulton and Nassau streets, in New-York. The characteristic modesty of our cotemporary has prevented him from stating that in consequence of a brief conversation with one of the compositors in the Herald office, over a dish of stewed oysters in Fulton Market, Lord ——, a British nobleman of great wealth and intelligence, has just returned to his native country, determined upon effecting the abolition of the peerage, and the destruction of the Burns Monument at Ayr. And we presume that something of political tenderness for our Southern fellow-citizens has interfered with the revelation of the interesting fact that a visit to the Herald office in 1835 made Mr. GARRISON an abolitionist, and induced him at that early date to unfurl the flag now given to the winds by the Herald of undying opposition to that abominable system under which, as the Herald justly observes, "while every one is compelled to labor, but few are allowed to think."

While, however, we are willing and anxious that our cotemporary should enjoy all the credit which justly belongs to him for these surprising "ramifications" of his "astounding enterprise," we think it due to the Messrs. HOE, whom he has taken under his wing in this enthusiastic style, to say that they also have done their work in the world. Their printing-presses are in use not only in the Herald establishment, but in all the principal newspaper offices of the City; and the "inquiry addressed to the Herald by the London Times," in reference to the working of the said presses, was really addressed not to the Herald in particular, but to all the printing-offices in which those presses are used, and not by the London Times at all, but by Messrs. HOE & Co. on their own behalf and under their proper signatures. These slight errors, natural enough in a "vast establishment" where the newsboys occasionally exchange places with the editors, ought to be corrected for the sake of the very ingenious and well-known mechanics whose noble invention is rapidly commending itself to the admiration and adoption of practical printers all the world over.

Extravagance and [illegible]

On Saturday last, Mr. TEN [illegible] ly elected New-Jersey Senator, was complimented by his neighbors with a congratulatory visit at his residence in Mount Holly, on which occasion he made a brief and very sensible speech. In the course of his remarks he mentioned several subjects which should receive his attention in his new capacity. Prominent among the reforms which he promised to support, with his best energy, he named "an economical and honest use of the public money."

In this phrase Mr. TEN EYCK struck the key-note of the hour. He has touched the public pulse where it is most sensitive. The question how to deal with extravagance and peculation, is one fraught with the gravest political consequences. It embraces the destiny of parties and candidates. Mr. TEN EYCK does not over-estimate its magnitude. In the present temper of the country it is no common-place topic, but quick with momentous import.

There is one concession which the mass of the people will claim at the hands of the National Nominating Conventions next year, in such earnest tones that the demand may not safely be disregarded. They will insist that the Presidential candidates shall stand clear of corruption and extravagance. On these points their records must be clean. The general mind of the country is thoroughly imbued with the conviction that corruption, peculation, and official robbery, have become the order of the day. No denial on the part of those implicated, no white-washing reports from committees of confederates can shake that conviction. It has reached all men in every grade of society. Each succeeding year fixes it deeper by accumulating proofs. The venality of politicians is proverbial. So general and pervading has corruption become that no station is too high to be stained by its influence.

The scandalous spectacle thus presented to the people has at length excited the popular mind. To expect the great body of the voters to tolerate it is futile. Removed as are the masses from the influences which debase those in power, and debarred from the possibility of participating in public plunder, their countenance of open, undeniable corruption, is out of the question, and any party which would succeed in the contest of 1860 must present a candidate not only innocent but above suspicion. On this point, quite as much as upon any other, the election is destined to turn.

There will be a strong temptation to disregard the will of the people in this particular. Politicians, such as usually compose nominating conventions, are by no means averse to candidates capable of being influenced by sinister appliances. On the contrary it is precisely such that they prefer. Their own personal interest appears likely to be promoted by the selection of men not too sternly and rigidly upright. In case of spoils, they look for dividends. Their position is very different from that of the undistinguished many, and they incline to choose a candidate with quite other views. Not unfrequently they are permitted to have their way, and to attain all their ends.

But there are signs which indicate that the present time is unfavorable to the aspirations of such men. The people are excited and awake. The business of peculation has been overdone. A crisis has come, and many traders must fail. Professional politicians cannot overlook the consideration that it is one thing to nominate, but quite another to elect. In the latter operation, though not in the former, the help of the masses is requisite; and the masses are in no humor to act as beasts of burden. They must at least see reason to believe that they are voting for honest candidates.

THE WANDERER'S NEGROES AND THE GOVERNMENT.—A statement in the Savannah Republican, said to be from reliable authority, brings home to the Government at Washington some serious responsibility in the disposition of the negroes imported in the Wanderer. A number of them were captured in Worth County, Ga., by the Deputy United States Marshal, Mr. McRAE, who sent at once to the Marshal at Savannah for instructions. The Marshal replied that he had telegraphed to Washington in regard to them, but had received no answer; that the Government knew of the Africans being in the State, but had given him no orders concerning them. He advised, therefore, their immediate discharge, and they were released. What has the Union to say upon this point?

THE LATEST CANARD.—That infallible authority, a "private letter from Paris," supplies somebody with the statement, which is duly forwarded to New-York, that LOUIS NAPOLEON is about sending an agent to Nicaragua to secure to French citizens there the right to employ Asiatic and African apprentices in mining and other pursuits. Considering the cheapness of native labor, the hostility of the Governments to any form of Slavery, the opposition that England would make to it, and the variety of interests which the Emperor has to look after just now elsewhere, this story may very safely be regarded as ridiculous and absurd.

A SLIGHT MISTAKE.—The North British Review, in an elaborate article on Slavery and the Slave States, falls into an error quite too serious to pass unnoticed. It says:

> "One peculiarity of the American laws is not to be overlooked, as it forms the characteristic feature of the American system. The slaves are not entitled, by law, to any holiday, period of rest, nor even to a Sabbath. This peculiarity is one of the greatest hardships that possibly could be imposed on the afflicted race—one of the greatest obstacles to the slave's improvement, and an effectual barrier to self-emancipation."

Now the truth is that the Slaves are "entitled by law" to a weekly Sabbath in every Slave State in the Union, with a single exception (Louisiana.) Masters are prohibited by law from employing their slaves in servile labor on Sunday.

Amusements.

PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY.—The fourth Concert of the season took place on Saturday evening, at Niblo's Garden, and attracted the usual dense throng of fashion and taste. The programme opened with a symphony by Mr. G. F. BRISTOW, in F sharp minor, a work of meritorious execution in a technical point of view, but frequently weak and ill-sustained. The writer of a symphony should have a musical intelligence superior to the temptation of ordinary dance themes. Mr. BRISTOW frequently surrenders himself to these pleasant inspirations, and mars, we think, the happiness and value of his work as a classical composition. It cannot be denied, however, that the symphony is most agreeable in its effect on a mixed audience, and hence the reason of its selection by the Society. With more opportunities to have his works performed, there can hardly be a doubt that Mr. BRISTOW would do much better than he has done in this work.

The "Leonora" overture in C by BEETHOVEN, and the overture to the "Vampyr" in D minor by MARSCHNER, were the remaining orchestral works, both played excellently under Mr. BERGMANN's direction. Mr. PHILIP MAYER sung an aria and a lied with his usual tenderness and effect. The Philharmonic Society has not spoilt us with its vocalists. Mr. MAYER is one of the best we have had this season.

Musical circles have known for some weeks past that a new pianist of remarkable powers had arrived here from Europe, and would make his appearance at this concert. Mr. S. B. MILLS, the gentleman in question, fulfilled the expectations of the audience. Although exceedingly young and quite fresh from the Conservatoire, he is in almost every respect the most [illegible] ate effect of all piano emulation. [illegible] s, demanding manual strength and digital [illegible] ge fantastic designs requiring a specific [illegible] in the player before they can be approached [illegible] certainty and flexibility of touch, these [illegible] the characteristics of the artists of the Li[illegible] school. Mr. MILLS is remarkable in almost every particular. We have never heard a more certain player, or one who produced so much tone with little effort from the arm. His execution is immense, and his technique so good that even in the most brilliant passages the grandeur of his tone is unimpaired. [illegible] chanical perfection [illegible] by almost unnoticed, [illegible] Mr. MILLS' case. A large, [illegible] able nature belongs to every player who is truly great. Mr. MILLS is no exception to the rule. He phrases with peculiar sentiment, and with a thoroughly clear and poetic perception of form. We have rarely heard a player who delivered the melody of a composition with such round, yet delicate force, or who could impart to its many phazes such lustrous complexions and flushings. It was certainly a severe test of the artist's powers that he made his first appeal to the audience in SCHUMANN's excessively difficult concerto in A minor—a work full of recondite suggestions, that have to be acted on by the player, and explained in impromptu musical elocution. Clever as it is this work does not please. The most it can do is to excite the curiosity of the many, and the enthusiasm of the few. In rendering it, however, Mr. MILLS won the entire suffrage of the audience. The sentiment of his playing, combined with its wonderful precision, led naturally to this result. It was not, however, until LISZT's Concert paraphrase on MENDELSSOHN's Wedding March, that all the strong points of Mr. MILLS' mechanism became thoroughly apparent. There are few piano pieces that possess so much orchestral color as this, or demand greater presence of mind in the performer. Mr. MILLS played it faultlessly, and in response to a unanimous encore played CHOPIN's Polonaise in E flat. A success more deserved we have never witnessed.

The fifth and last concert will take place on the 30th of April. BEETHOVEN's Fourth Symphony; Les preludes poéme Symphonique by F. LISZT, and WEBER's overture to "Euryanthe," are announced for rehearsal.

WM. HALL & SON.—This old-established music-firm took its farewell of Park-place on Saturday, and removed to the new and beautiful store No. 543 Broadway. Artists and amateurs should bear it in mind. Not to know where HALL's store is situated, is not to know the Musical Exchange of New-York.

WALLACK'S THEATRE.—Mrs. HOEY takes her annual benefit at this house to-night, and every patron of the establishment will of course be on hand. The "Veteran" will be played for the last time but two with Mr. WALLCK in his original character.

BROADWAY THEATRE.—SHAKESPEARE'S "Anthony and Cleopatra" enters on its fourth and last week to-night. On Saturday Mr. EDDY takes his benefit.

THEATRE FRANCAIS.—The charming little comedie called "Je Dine Chez Ma Mere" was most excellently played here on Saturday, and displayed the best points of M. LABA's acting. Mlle. CHEVALIER was also excellent. In the "Depit Amoureux" the management entered on a field which is a little removed for the taste of the present day. It was nicely rendered, however. The farce which followed was uproariously funny and quite as broad as the American appetite demands.

NIBLO'S GARDEN.—The equestrian troupe of Messrs. NIXON continues here for another week. On Wednesday, Mr. JAMES MELVILLE takes his benefit.

LAURA KEENE'S THEATRE.—SHERIDAN's comedy of "The Rivals" will be placed here to-night and to-morrow night with all the strength of the really fine company. "Our American Cousin" will also be played two nights, Wednesday and Thursday. SHAKESPEARE's "Midsummer Night's Dream" will be produced here on Monday next.

BARNUM'S MUSEUM.—A new drama with the startlingly original title of "Our Irish Cousin" will be produced here to night. It is from the pen of Mr. H. J. CONWAY.

BOWERY THEATRE.—The successful drama called "The Miller of New-Jersey," and "Asphodel" will be given here to-night.

WOOD'S MINSTRELS.—Minstrelsy of the best kind, and the pantomime of the "Mystic Spell" here to-night.

READINGS.—Mrs. LAURA S. BISHOP announces a reading at Clinton Hall to-night.

NEW THEATRES.—One of the many new theatres talked about is actually in progress. This is the large theatre to be erected in the Bowery, near Hester-street, at a cost of $150,000. This building will be 70 feet wide, running through 202 feet from the Bowery, to Elizabeth street, and will hold 5,000 persons. The antiquated structures now on the ground are in course of removal. The first story will be of iron, and the rest of brick or marble. The architect, Mr. JOHN M. TRIMBLE, has just completed the new Opera House in Cincinnati, at a cost of $500,000, (or rather more than was given for the Academy of Music in this City, being larger,) and which is ranked among the first buildings in the country. All the decorations will be in papier maché, quite elaborate, and finished in white and gold; the ceilings frescoed. The entire work is contracted to be finished by the first of September ensuing.

OBITUARY.

Mr. FAYETTE ROBINSON, the second victim of the poisoning affair at Mrs. BETHAM's boarding house in Fourteenth-street, was a gentleman of considerable literary reputation. He was a native of Virginia, highly educated and talented. Some twelve or fourteen years ago, after a long period of travel, he came to this City and accepted an engagement in the office of the Tribune. His acquirements as a linguist rendered him a valuable assistant in the conduct of a newspaper. Speaking and writing eight or ten languages with fluency, he enjoyed advantages of more than an ordinary character, yet failed to reach the position to which his talents entitled him, through lack of industrious application. After a short period of newspaper service in the Tribune and Herald establishments, in both of which he was chiefly employed as translator, he entered into other branches of business, but had not been publicly known for several years before his death, ill health and a constitution broken by his habits preventing him from active exercise. Mr. ROINSON is known as the author of three works—Mexico and her Military Chieftains, published in Philadelphia in 1847; Organization of the United States Army, in two volumes, published in 1848; and California and its Gold Regions, published in this City in 1849. Mr ROBINSON and his wife had boarded at the house of Mrs. BETHAM for a short time, and the effect of the poison administered at the breakfast-table on Wednesday, acting upon an enfeebled frame, caused his death on Saturday evening last. His age was about 43.

Mrs. Barbara Gilmer died, on the 27th February, in Robeson Township, Berks County, Penn., in her 89th year. She was born near the spot where she died, and where she lived during her life-time. In 1777 a detachment of the American army was quartered near the site of the present village of St. Mary's. Mrs. Gilmer—then a little girl—often accompanied an older sister in her visits among the soldiers, whom she supplied with milk.

Ex-Governor David Campbell, of Virginia, died in Abingdon, Va., March 19, aged 80. He was a Major in the Twelfth Regiment, United States Infantry, during the war with Great Britain, and served with great credit on the Northern frontier.

Mr. Samuel D. Eytinge, an actor favorably known, lately stage manager at the Washington (D. C.) Theatre, died at Washington, March 24, of neuralgia.

Major William Swan, one of the oldest and most wealthy citizens of Knoxville, Tenn., died in that city March 20, aged 70.

Baltimore papers notice the death of Col. James Piper and Mr. Henry Relp, both old and well known citizens.

Interesting from Venezuela.

By Captain ATKINSON, of the bark Venus, from Curaçoa, arrived yesterday, we have dates, to March 11:

Venezuela is again disturbed. The province of Coro has declared in favor of a Federal Government, and has taken up arms in the cause. Several exiles have left Curaçoa to join their friends. General TAMORA left Curaçoa to take command of the troops at Coro, and, by accounts to March 8, had taken the field.

At Maracaibo, on the 6th, the place was quiet, but a revolt was momentarily expected.

The rest of the provinces were quiet, but there are many dissatisfied with the present Republic, and it is supposed there would be a general revolution.

General PAEZ is still sick.

A letter received from Saint Thomas on the 2d of March, referring to news received the same morning from Curaçoa, says that the Consul at Venezuela, at the latter point, had received information of a revolution having broken out in the department of Maracaibo, at the head of which was a general officer, and the restoration of Ex-President MONAGAS was the object.

A LITERARY CURIOSITY.—The Ledger of this week contains a biography of BERNARDIN ST. PIERRE, the author of Paul and Virginia, which he wrote himself and presented to REMBRANDT PEALE when he sat to that artist for his portrait. Mr. PEALE has kept the MS. until within a few weeks, when he translated it and sent it to the Ledger for publication.

CITY INTELLIGENCE.

SOUTHERN AID SOCIETY.—Religious services were held, last evening, in the Cooper Institute, under the auspices of and for the purpose of enlisting support for the Southern Aid Society. After prayer, HORACE HOLDEN, Esq., the President, opened the meeting by some remarks, in which he stated that he neither opposed Slavery or denounced Slaveholders. Both the slave and his master needed the pardoning power of the Saviour, and this Society was organized for extending the blessings of the Gospel to the waste places of the South. The Society had nothing to do with Slavery. The Rev. J. C. STILES, D. D., then made a lengthy address, urging the importance of the North coöperating with the Society in its Missionary efforts. In Christian knowledge the South was far behind the North; they had not the same degree of general knowledge, and, take the black and white together they were very far inferior to us. They had but one minister to every [illegible] of their population, while the North had one to every 900. One-third of the Northern ministers had a liberal education, but only one-sixth of the clergy of the South had had equal advantages. They received but a slight support, and were obliged, many of them, to engage in secular pursuits. A whole Presbytery in Tennessee averaged but $212 salary. The Society had sent to a Synod in Georgia $100 each to its members, and they had received answer that none of them had ever seen as much money before. The speaker argued the duty of Northern Christians to assist their destitute Southern brethren to spread the Gospel. A collection was taken up, and after a short address from Mr. WM. E. DODGE, the meeting adjourned.

THE SERVICES IN THE ACADEMY OF MUSIC.—The Sunday evening services in the Academy of Music continue to be as numerously attended as ever. Last evening the building was thronged, hundreds being compelled to content themselves by standing. After the customary preliminary exercises, singing, reading of the Scriptures and prayer, the Rev. EDWARD LATHROP, D. D., Pastor of the Second-avenue Baptist Church, delivered a discourse founded on 2d Corinthians, fourth chapter and third verse: "If our Gospel be hid it is hid from them that are lost." The Reverend speaker defined the term Gospel, as here used, to mean the cross of Christ or Christ crucified, and then proceeded to state that the word "lost" in this case referred to those who had heard Christ preached, but refused to believe. The reason why individuals are blind does not at all arise from the nature of the Gospel. The fault is in the heart of man. These truths and the consequences flowing from them, were enforced with great distinctness and power. The audience listened attentively throughout the delivery of the discourse. It was stated that the collections which had been taken up each evening had not defrayed one-third of the expense of holding the service.

CHILD SMOTHERED BY ITS DRUNKEN MOTHER.—About 10½ o'clock last evening, BRIDGET CUSICK, an Irish woman, was brought to the Sixth Precinct Station house by Captain DOWLING, in a beastly state of intoxication, she being arrested by the policeman on a charge of suffocating her infant, three months old. The husband of BRIDGET stated that he left the house in which they lived, No. 57 Baxter-street, at about 9 o'clock in the evening, the child being then in perfect health, and on returning shortly afterwards, found it was dead, apparently from suffocation. It is supposed the suffocation was caused by the mother, who was lying in the bed with the child, and, it is thought, unconsciously threw the bed-clothes over the head of the infant. A Coroner's inquest will be held to day at the Station-house.

JEWISH SYNAGOGUE.—A new synagogue is soon to be erected by the congregation Shearith Israel, in Nineteenth-street, near Fifth-avenue. The building, which is to be 75x80 feet, will be surmounted by a dome 50 feet in diameter. As citizens generally do not regard Saturday as a day of rest, the place of worship in the Synagogue will be in the second story of the building, to avoid the noise in the streets. Its front will be of marble or of Dorchester stone, with an entrance fourteen feet wide, flanked by coupled Corinthian columns. In its inside arrangements the structure is to accord with that of other Jewish Synagogues, the galleries being reserved for the ladies. The cost of the building will be about $60,000.

A LARGE ORDER.—We saw at APPLETON'S the CHATHAM-STREET.—A correspondent remonstrates justly enough against a paragraph recently published in our columns, speaking of Chatham-street as a street of "shysters,"—merely because one person in the street had been complained of for swindling. But he will please observe that the remark was published as having been made by another person, and not at all as our own opinion. It was grossly and absurdly unjust, and was evidently the ebullition of a momentary spleen. The reputation of Chatham-street will not materially suffer from so ridiculous a slur.

other day, a mountain of books packed for the State of Ohio. The Superintendent of State Schools, who has charge of the purchase of school books for the whole State, and who makes it a point, so far as possible, to secure uniformity in the school books used throughout the State, had ordered eighty thousand volumes from this firm.

Police Reports.

DEATH FROM ALLEGED VIOLENCE BY POLICEMEN.—Bernard Kerrigan, an Irish laborer, on Saturday died in the basement of No. 5 Laurens-street, and his death is alleged to have been caused by violence received at the hands of two police officers of the Sixth Ward. A story attributing his death to other causes than that named is told by the policemen implicated, but it thus far is uncorroborated. The statement of the deceased himself, prior to his death, tells most positively against the officers. His statement was, that on Thursday evening last he was met in Baxter-street by two policemen, taken to a station-house, confined there all night, and the next morning arraigned before Justice CONNOLLY and discharged. On the way to the station-house the policemen, without any provocation, struck him three or four violent blows with their clubs, which were followed by an acute pain in his bowels. He was not drunk, and had committed no breach of the peace. A post-mortem examination of the body developed the fact that the small intestines had been ruptured, which produced inflammation of the peritoneum, and consequent death. Coroner Jackman was notified of the death of the deceased, and on Saturday commenced an inquisition. Several witnesses were examined. Patrick Farrel, the uncle of the deceased, told the story of Kerrigan given above, as related to him prior to the latter's decease, He added, however, that he never saw the deceased drunk, and, as far as he knew, he was not in the habit of getting intoxicated. Barney Smith corroborated the statement of Farrel. Justice CONNOLLY stated the fact that the deceased was brought before him by an officer, and a charge preferred against him of having been engaged in a fight in Baxter-street, which complaint he dismissed. William Golden and George Wilsey, the officers who arrested Kerrigan, said that they found him in a low den in Baxter-street, and a company of dissolute women and boys abusing him. Some of the boys, they said, threw stones at him. No complaint was made against the deceased, but considering his life in danger, they took him away and conveyed him to the Station-house. A further examination will take place on Tuesday afternoon. Meantime no arrests have been made.

VICTIMS OF ASSAULT.—Patrick Cannagh, an Irishman, while in the eating-saloon corner of Bowery and Grand-street at 1 o'clock yesterday morning, was set upon by a gang of rowdies and severely beaten. The ruffians fled and he found his way into the street where two officers picked him up and conveyed him to the Station-house. His wounds were dressed, after which he was conveyed to his residence No. 233 Elizabeth-street. He did not know the names of any of his assailants. John Maurice, a German, living at No. 6 Christie-street, had an altercation with George Carr, which ended in his being stabbed in the under lip. Carr was arrested and committed to answer by Justice BRENNAN. Maurice was taken home and his lip sewed up. Richard Carey was brought to the Hospital yesterday morning having his under lip bitten off by a ruffian who, he said, had assailed him and attempted to rob him.

FIGHT BETWEEN TWO FIRE COMPANIES.—About 6½ o'clock last evening an alarm of fire occurred in the Fourth District, in consequence of a defect in one of the flues of the building No. 506 Broadway. There was no damage done. The occasion was however improved by two rival fire companies to attempt to settle a difficulty which has lately arisen in consequence of one company siding with another company recently disbanded by the Fire Commissioners. Fists, wrenches, etc., were freely used for several minutes, but the police rushed in, made several arrests, and quelled the disturbance. The detective force, and Captain Turnbull, and the policemen of the 8th Precinct, rendered efficient service in suppressing the disturbance. The persons arrested were discharged, as no one appeared to make a complaint against them.

THE BOWERY SALOON SHOOTING AFFRAY.—Charles Sturgis, who was shot on Friday morning by John Plomer, in the oyster saloon No. 36 Bowery, died yesterday morning at the City Hospital from the effects of his injuries. The Coroner will hold the inquest to-day. The deceased, although a young man, bore the reputation of a desperate and hardened rowdy, and was an acknowledged leader of the "Bowery Boys." Directly after the deceased was shot, a gang of "Bowery Boys" entered the saloon, and commenced a general demolition of the furniture and fixtures. Upon hearing of his death, a band of the same lawless ruffians yesterday reëntered the saloon, and finished their work of destroying the furniture. Plomer is still in custody, bail for him having been refused.

BURGLARS.—John Gree alias Rollins, entered the dwelling-house No. 42 Waverley-place, and helped himself to watches, clothing, and other articles valued at $150. The property was recovered and the burglar committed to Essex Market Prison. John Hodge, a youth 17 years of age, with the aid of a false key, entered the store of Henry Wallenkamp, corner of New Bowery and Chatham-street, and stole a revolver and two sets of billiard balls. Justice Brennan also locked him up.

STEALING NEWSPAPERS.—A good many citizens in the upper part of the City have complained of having had their papers stolen from their doors. An officer lay in wait and discovered in the person of John Deitz, a Dutchman, the literary purloiner. Deitz, it appears, stocked a news depôt with the products of his thieving. Such enterprise was deemed too one-sided in its benefits, and the literary Teuton was committed to the City Prison.

COUNTERFEIT MONEY.—Charles Belmar attempted to exchange a counterfeit $5 bill on the Mechanics Bank of New Haven, at the store of Nathan Cornwell, No. 30 Bowery, for some shirts. The counterfeit was detected, and Belmar, instead of getting himself into a new shirt, got himself into the tombs.

DISHONEST OFFICE BOY.—On Saturday Mr. Wm. Jervis, of No. 229 Broadway, sent his office boy to the Chemical Bank to draw the money on a check for $25. The youth drew the money, withdrew to his lodgings in Williamsburgh, and soon after decamped, and has not since been found.

The Boarding-House Poisoning Case.

ANOTHER DEATH—CORONER'S INQUEST CONTINUED —FURTHER DEVELOPMENTS.

Mr. FAYETTE ROBINSON, one of the boarders at the boarding-house corner of Fourteenth-street and Fourth-avenue, who were poisoned on Thursday last, died on Saturday evening. This is the second death thus far. Out of the remaining number who were poisoned, Mr. CANALIJO, a Spaniard, is the only one whose condition is considered any way critical. Mrs. BETHAM was buried on Saturday, her stomach and intestines being still in the hands of Dr. DOREMUS, for analytical examination.

The remains of Mr. ROBINSON will be taken to Richmond, Va., for interment, where his friends reside. Dr. DOREMUS will first, however, make the examination of the intestinal organs.

MARGARET BURKE, the servant girl suspected of having poisoned the food, is still detained in custody in the Eighteenth Ward Station-house. An examination of her trunks has led to the discovery of various articles which are supposed to have been stolen, thus indicating a want of honesty on her part. She is about twenty-five years of age, and has a coarse, vindictive expression of countenance. She has been in this country two years, and had been in Mrs. BETHAM'S employ only four months. Besides a sister living at Yorkville, she says she has no relatives in this country. The poisoning tragedy has entirely broken up the boarding-house, the only one of the former boarders now remaining being Mr. CANALIJO, who is too ill to leave his bed. Mrs. BETHAM was a widow lady, her husband having died five years since. She leaves three daughters, the eldest being fourteen and the younger seven.

On Friday Coroner SCHIRMER proceeded with the inquest. The following is the additional evidence taken:

Miss Emily Betham sworn—On Wednesday morning Margaret Burke waited on the table the same as usual; she poured out the coffee in a room adjoining that in which the boarders sat, and brought it into them; I did not come down until rather late; I poured out my own coffee, and put sugar in it; I was not sick at all; my mother drank tea, which Margaret poured out in the kitchen and brought up stairs to her; she became sick immediately after drinking it.

Ellen Gormon, sworn—I am a servant in the employ of Mr. Whiteman, next door; on Tuesday evening, about nine o'clock, Margaret Burke came into our kitchen, and told me that she and Mrs. Betham had had another quarrel, and Mrs. Betham had told her that she intended to pay her her money and let her go, even if she had to beg or borrow it; Margaret said if she didn't get her money she would raise a row—she would have all the people in Fourteenth-street, even the little children, around the house; she told me that she said these words to Mrs. Betham; on Thursday, about noon, I saw Margaret; she was in bed, but did not appear sick; saw no evidence of vomiting or purging in any vessel in the room where she was lying; I asked her why she didn't get up and do something for Mrs. Betham, as she was very sick; she said she had tried to get up, but was so sick she had to go to bed again; she didn't seem to be affected nor in any way concerned about the matter.

Dr. Dooley sworn—I was called at nine o'clock on Wednesday morning, by a medical student, to give an opinion as to whether the people were poisoned or not; Margaret Burke let me in; I was called again that evening at 9 o'clock, to attend Mr. and Mrs. Robinson; they were very sick, vomiting and purging freely; Mr. Robinson has since died; Mr. and Mrs. Robinson were not taken sick after partaking breakfast, but immediately after taking lunch, at one o'clock, when they had tea and some food; they were seized with the symptoms described.

The inquisition was here adjourned till Tuesday, at 10 A. M., when it is expected Dr. DOREMUS will present his report touching his examination of the stomachs of the deceased parties, and the inquisition be brought to a close.

BROOKLYN INTELLIGENCE.

THE WATER CELEBRATION.—The Special Committee of the Common Council appointed to make arrangements for celebrating the introduction of water, intend that it shall be on a scale surpassing in grandeur anything that has ever occurred in this city or New York. The Committee meets every Monday, in the City Hall, and already a large number of societies have signified their intention of taking part in the proceedings, also a number of business firms. The "medal" to be struck off, to commemorate the introduction of water, is described as follows: The obverse presents a figure of Aquarius, with the legend, "Nassau Water Works, commenced July 31, 1856." The reverse, the Pump House at Rigewood, with the inscription "Water introduced Dec. 18, 1858, celebrated April 27, 1859." The "Nassau" will doubtless be changed to "Ridgewood" before the medal is accepted by City Authorities.

A MISSING MAN FOUND DROWNED.—The body of JOHN RESCH, of No. 110 Tenth-street, was found in Newtown Creek yesterday. The deceased has been missing since the 16th of February last. He was about 50 years of age. A Coroner's Jury rendered a verdict that he came to his death from accidental drowning.

FIRE.—The ten-pin alley on Fulton near Hudson-avenue, owned by WILLIAM GOLDSMITH, was partially destroyed by fire at 3 o'clock yesterday morning. Loss $100. Insured in the Brooklyn City Insurance Company.

FATAL ACCIDENT.—A widow woman named ANN WILDE, residing near Penny Bridge, at the foot of Smith-street, fell from a window of her residence to the sidewalk, Saturday night, by which she sustained a fracture of the skull. She died from the injuries received, during the night. The deceased was about 50 years old, and was the widow of JAMES P. WILDE. She leaves a number of young children.

RELIGIOUS.—The Rev. O. W. BRIGGS has tendered his resignation as pastor of the First Baptist Church, to take effect on the 1st of July next. The Washington-avenue Baptist Church and the Atlantic-street Baptist Church are both collecting funds to erect church edifices. The annual meeting of the Congregational Association will be held in Plymouth Church on the 5th of April next.

BROOKLYN LITERARY ASSOCIATION.—This Society has elected the following officers for the ensuing year: President—L. D. St. George. Vice-President—B. F. Webb. Secretary—H. A. Dunning. Treasurer—W. H. Hilcox. Editor—Charles Reilly.

BURGLARY.—On Saturday night last the house of JESSE C. ROWAN, corner of Franklin and Willoughby avenues, was entered by burglars and robbed of silver ware and jewelry to considerable value.

THE FRY DIVORCE CASE.—The Philadelphia Evening Journal recently published some very sharp remarks upon an article in the Tribune on the Fry Divorce Case. It attributed the authorship of the article to WM. H. FRY, Esq., from whom its editor soon after received the following note:

PHILADELPHIA, March 24, 1859,
No. 1,512 Chestnut-street, Colonnade Row.

SIR: In your journal of yesterday there is an article for which you alone are responsible as editor and proprietor, filled with the grossest defamation of myself and my brother HORACE. Your assertions therein are unfounded and false. I therefore proclaim you a liar and a venal slanderer, and of course I hold myself responsible for any notice you may choose to take of this.

Yours, &c.,
WM. HENRY FRY.

F. W. GRAYSON, Esq.

In reply the Journal reasserts the truth of its former statements, and closes with the following reference to the question of personal responsibility between its editor and Mr. FRY:

"We understand our relation towards him in this controversy, and he shall not shift positions with us by any miserable bravado. If he is right in accusing us of falsely and venally slandering him and his brother, ours was the original insult and injury, and the onus of taking satisfaction for it rests with him. He shall not put it upon us for means of a silly note, in which he chooses to assail us with coarse epithets and groundless imputations. There is a much more manly and effectual mode of vindication which he can adopt, if he will, and to that we leave him."

MORE SCHOOL TROUBLES IN MASSACHUSETTS.—The Boston Traveller, March 23, says: "At the opening of the regular exercises in the Park-street school, in Chelsea, this morning, five boys refused to respond to the Lord's Prayer, unless they could be allowed to repeat the version which had been taught them by their religious instructor. As this was impracticable, under existing circumstances, Miss CARLTON, the Principal, called in Dr. MITCHELL, of the Sub-Committee, who called upon those boys who refused to comply with the requirements of the Committee to rise in their places. Six boys stood up, whereupon Dr. MITCHELL directed them either to obey the rules of the school promptly, or take their books and leave. One of the lads had his books already packed for a start, and left the school in high glee. Aside from the dismissal of these rebellious spirits, the school is in a prosperous condition. It numbers 120 pupils, more than one-third of whom are sons of Catholic parents."

CALENDAR FOR MARCH 26.—Nos. 20, 23½, 38, 40½, 42, 48, 49, 51, 52, 54.

THE UNDERGROUND RAILROAD.—An Association, composed of the colored people of Canada West, the object of which is to erect a dépôt at Sandwich for the reception of passengers over the Underground Railroad from the Slave States, and the more efficiently to aid those who prefer freedom to slavery in their efforts to reach Canada, has been formed. The Association, which is to be called the Agricultural, Mechanical and Educational Association of Canada West, is composed principally of those who, for several years, have been conductors and dépôt agents on the Underground Railroad. They have procured at Sandwich thirty acres of ground, on which they desire to build houses for the use of those just arrived from slavery, until they can procure employment. They have also opened a free school for their benefit. —Detroit Advertiser.

THE FAMOUS MCDONOGH ESTATE.—The property of the McDonogh estate accruing to the city of Baltimore, and situated in the second and third Districts, in New-Orleans, was sold at auction in that city on the 17th inst. The Bulletin says the attendance of purchasers was larger than at any of the previous sales of this estate, and the prices realized show a very considerable increase in the value of city property; some lots went to almost fabulous prices, and the total amount realized ($232 225) exceed the appraisement made late last year by nearly 33⅓ per cent. This is the second sale of the share of the city Baltimore of the McDonogh estate. The first one realized $287,210—total of both sales $519,435.

THE CANAL CONTRACTS IN OHIO.—The Cincinnati Commercial says: "We have good news from Columbus. The attempt to restore the fraudulent and unconstitutional canal contracts is a failure. The bill restoring the contracts which passed the House was yesterday killed in the Senate by its indefinite postponement. The killing vote was decisive—21 to 11—and would have been still stronger against the swindle if the issue of restoration or repudiation had been directly presented.

APRIL.

Again, as Spring, with radiant wing,
To greet the greening earth advances,
Our April sky, like Laura's eye,
In mingled tears and laughter glances.
One sunny hour and then a shower,
A glow of heat and next a shiver.
To day the rose half opes and blows,
To morrow ice is in the river.
Through branching roots the Spring-life shoots,
The sap is swelling leaf and blossom;
In warmer flood the mounting blood
Now leaps through every human bosom;
Dear Annie's eye, though still and shy,
Yet glisters with a tender meaning,
And though too coy to own her joy,
We see her heart is toward us leaning.

Oh, month of change! in all the range
Of seasons gayest and most subtle!
We give advice beyond all price—
A maxim worthy Captain Cuttle!
Let all who'd bear thy varied air—
Its sudden cold, the heat that smothers—

WHAT IS AMERICAN SOLIDIFIED MILK?

The following distinguished physicians, a Committee of the New York Academy of Medicine, have answered this as follows:

"The American Solidified Milk has been fully subjected to our critical examination; we have traced the milk of the rich pasturage of Dutchess County, from the udder to its final conversion into solidified milk, and we find it to be nothing but the solid constituents of pure milk, combined with a little less than an equal part, by weight, of white sugar; that it contains no other foreign substance; that the various solids of the original fluid are preserved intact, even the butter globules being unbroken; that it is readily and perfectly soluble in water, and when it is so dissolved in proper proportion, it is in fact milk, as it was secreted by the cow, with the sole exception of the sugar which accompanies it; that the only medicinal or culinary operations in which ordinary milk is required and this article cannot be used, are those in which sugar is inadmissible; while, on the other hand, whenever sugar is required in connection with milk they are here found together:

CATARRH! CATARRH! CATARRH!
CATARRH. WHAT IS IT? HOW CURED?
Thousands of persons suffer all sorts of annoyance from Catarrh. Most people know what its inconvenience and results are, yet but few know how it can be cured. It is simply a chronic irritation and after enlargement of follicles and consequent thickening of the mucous membrane lining the nasal cavities, frontal sinuses and posterior nares and sometimes extending into the throat and lungs. From this results tightness and often vertigo of the head, obstructed nose or profuse flow of mucus, loss of smell, nasal voice, and often impaired hearing and taste. The old school remedies have never been able to do anything for it. Nasal injections and inhalations are as painful and expensive as they are generally worthless, yet HUMPHREYS' CATARRH SPECIFIC, a simple SUGAR PILL taken two or three times per day, promptly relieves the milder cases, cures at once colds in the head, and radically cures by perseverance the most obstinate cases, as is proved by the experience of hundreds.
Price, with full directions, &c.............50 cents per box.
N. B.—A full set of HUMPHREYS' HOMŒOPATHIC SPECIFICS, with Book of Directions and 20 Remedies, in large 3-drachm vials and morocco case, $5; ditto in plain case, $4; family case of 15 boxes and book, $2.
The Remedies, by the single box or full case, sent to any address by mail or express, free of charge, on receipt of the price. Address F HUMPHREYS & CO.,

ESTABLISHED IN 1834.
Dr. HUNTER, No. 3 Division-st., offers to the public the only reliable remedy known in the wide world for the permanent cure and removal of every particle of the rank and poisonous virus of venereal disease, which is the genuine HUNTER'S RED DROP, made from the original recipe, in the possession of Dr. HUNTER and not known by any other person living except Dr. HUNTER, at No. 3 Division-st., one door from the Bowery, all the assertions of the many poisonous quacks to the contrary notwithstanding. Dr. H. has prepared every vial of this celebrated medicine with his own hands that has ever been offered for sale for the last thirty years, and has never intrusted any living person with the secret; consequently, everything offered for sale at any other place is a libel, a base and wicked counterfeit, got up by some unprincipled wretch that, for the sake of a dollar, would trifle with the lives of his fellow-men.

Removal of Quarantine—What are the Dangers of Infection?

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

Since the destruction of the Quarantine Hospitals, residences and offices last September, and especially since the commencement of the present session of the Legislature, the people of this port, and of the State at large, have felt no little interest as to the questions involved in the project of removing Quarantine.

Hitherto, for the most part, the citizens of Richmond County alone have objected to the present location of Quarantine; and they have in effect declared that they had greater reasons to fear the spread of pestilence therefrom than any other locality in or around the port. Prior to the year of 1856, this declaration was apparently true; but since then, and during that year, Brooklyn and her suburbs have suffered much from yellow fever, so that her citizens feel a deep anxiety in reference to all the real dangers of Quarantine. Indeed, the opinion now is pretty generally entertained that Brooklyn has as much, if not more, to fear from Quarantine, as at present constituted, than even Staten Island. It has been ascertained, that when the infection of yellow fever finds a lodgement in some of the wharf streets of Brooklyn, it generates and spreads therefrom with greater readiness than from any portion of Staten Island. Kings County, therefore, and especially that part of her territory lying within the city limits of Brooklyn, has great reason to fear, and to ask protection from, the real dangers growing out of the close proximity of the Quarantine establishment.

But what is the source of danger from Quarantine? Is it from infected vessels and cargoes, or from hospitals, passengers, and patients? More than half a century having passed since the Quarantine establishment was located where it now is, it would seem that the nature and character of imported diseases ought to be so well understood as to make it entirely superfluous to propose the above interrogatories; but strange to say, the most vague notions prevail as to the true source of danger from Quarantine; and it is chiefly owing to the promulgation of such erroneous impressions, that New-Jersey refuses to grant to this State the Quarantine jurisdiction of Sandy Hook.

By the formal ordinances passed by the Castleton Board of Health last Summer, and especially by the outrages committed by the midnight mob in pursuance of the same, persons unacquainted with the nature and character of infectious diseases might easily infer that yellow fever alone spreads from hospitals, passengers and patients. But such is not the fact; and all past experience sustains the denial. The truth is, that the Castleton Board of Health, and the mob which so promptly did its bidding, in burning hospitals, a score or more of private dwellings, and sundry offices, were grossly mistaken as to the source of danger from Quarantine—as to the real nuisance. Who ever heard of a case of yellow fever spreading from the Marine Hospitals? By what rule of reasoning can the Castleton Board of Health make it appear that the twelve private residences within the Quarantine inclosure, burned by its order, were a source of infection to anybody? Who is wise enough to point out in what manner the offices at Quarantine endangered the citizens of Tompkinsville? Such pretensions were preposterous in the extreme. Such hospitals, residences, and offices, and other similar buildings belonging to the State, and which were burned by the mob at Castleton in September last, were never a source of danger; and the act, therefore, which destroyed them, to speak in mild terms, was uncalled for, unwise, and needlessly revolutionary.

But what is the source of danger from Quarantine? Yellow fever during the past season, and also in 1856, spread from the establishment to the shores of Staten Island and Long Island to an alarming extent. If it be true that the danger is not from hospitals, residences, offices, passengers and patients, from whence does it eminate? The answer is, from infected vessels and cargoes—from vessels and cargoes arriving from tropical ports, at which yellow fever was prevailing as an epidemic when the vessels took their departure. The exclusive source of danger being thus from infected vessels and cargoes, what an unpardonable mistake, to say the least, was made by the Castleton Board of Health when it ordered the destruction of the State's property at Quarantine. That which was clearly and confessedly not a nuisance was demolished by the torch of the incendiary, while that which was, and always has been the only source of danger, was left unnoticed, unharmed and undisturbed!

The foregoing views of the dangers from Quarantine are not the convictions of a single season of official or professional experience, nor is the writer alone in entertaining them. On the other hand, they are deductions from years of careful observation, and fully sustained by the almost unanimous testimony of the profession, not excepting the past incumbents of the Health-office of the Port; for, in 1849, Drs. HARRISON and WESTERVELT, formerly Health-officers, but then, as now, residents of Staten Island; then, as now, advocates for the removal of Quarantine; then, as now, large real estate owners of Richmond County; declared, by affidavit before a legislative Committee, that the spread of yellow fever from Quarantine had arisen from intercourse and communication with infected vessels and cargoes, or with refuse materials clandestinely taken therefrom.

Dr. HARRISON swore:

"I was formerly Health Officer at the Quarantine establishment at Staten Island; it was from the year 1823 to 1829, (six years;) was an assistant there previously; was there in 1811 and 1812, and also from 1815 to 1823, (ten years!) was in the establishment altogether about ten years previous to my appointment as Health Officer; I am somewhat conversant with similar establishments; am a physician by education; am intimately acquainted with the Quarantine at Staten Island, and have been for more than thirty years; the population has increased very considerably during that period; I was not much acquainted with the establishment when first located there, which was in 1798; was first attached to it in 1811; the population in the vicinity was then (1811) very sparse; there were comparatively but a few persons in the vicinity; the population was limited, on the north side of the Quarantine ground; at that time, too, there was but one boarding-house and one dwelling-house; the boarding-house was for the accommodation of passengers in vessels quarantined; with the exception of those two, there was not a dwelling-house within nearly half a mile in that direction; on the west side there was but one dwelling-house within a considerable distance." * * * * *

The Doctor further swore:

"There are two sources of danger—first, that arising from direct communication of persons with infected vessels lying at Quarantine; and second, that which arises from the infection which may be carried ashore in currents of foul air from infected vessels." * * *

Again, Dr. WESTERVELT swore:

"I have been familiar with the operation of the Quarantine laws since 1823, when I was appointed Assistant Health Officer, and held that office until 1828 (five years.) In 1829 I was appointed Health Officer, and held that office until 1836, (seven years.) I have since resided in the immediate vicinity of the Quarantine ground, and have been in the habit of constant intercourse with that establishment" * *

Dr. W. further deposed:

"The families of many of those employed in the Quarantine, such as Custom-house officers, boatmen, &c., reside in the village. The intercourse between their families and others employed in the Quarantine, and between these families and the village population, is constant; thus forming a complete and uninterrupted communication. The intercourse between the village and infected vessels anchored at Quarantine, through lightermen, boatmen and laborers employed in discharging their cargoes, whose families reside in the village, is very great. I have known one hundred persons thus employed at one time." * * *

Dr. W. further testified:

"The intercourse between the City of New-York and infected vessels at Quarantine, direct, by means of small boats, is considerable, and for reasons before stated, to a great extent unavoidable."

And again he said:

"The yellow fever prevailed at the Quarantine in the hospitals and in the surrounding village, during the past season, caused, doubtless, by the communication between the infected vessels and the population, and by the force of the wind wafting ashore the poisonous material as it issued from the open hatches of discharging vessels, and infecting all who were exposed to it."

He further added, in allusion to the Quarantine experience of 1821:

"A few sporadic cases of fever occurred; but the disease was, in every instance, confined to persons who had directly communicated with the infected vessels."

It would seem that the above testimony ought to be conclusive as to the real dangers of Quarantine, and as to the necessities in connection with the effort to remove the establishment. The testimony shows beyond question, that vessels infected with yellow fever poison should not be allowed to ride out their quarantine, or to discharge their cargoes, above the Narrows, and that while they are under Quarantine, indiscriminate intercourse and communication with them should be prohibited. If provisions of law shall be enacted by the Legislature to secure such a disposition of vessels coming into port infected with the poison of yellow fever, Staten Island, Long Island, Brooklyn, and New-York will forever be free from the dangers of the tropic scourge, irrespective of any change as to the site of the Marine hospitals, or the general Quarantine anchorage for European and other vessels.

THE NEW-JERSEY CHANCELLORSHIP.—The Newark Mercury says: "The bill providing for the foreclosure of mortgages in the Circuit Courts was unfortunately lost in the House of Assembly, and thus the evils of closing the Court of Chancery are increased. During the ensuing year there will be no practicable mode of meeting the requirements of the people of the State in reference to suits of this character, and the embarrassments and difficulties arising therefrom will be severely felt."

PERSONAL.

The Naples correspondent of the Times writes of King Bomba. The intelligence which reaches me from Bari is to the effect that the King is suffering from a disease in the articulation of the thigh bone, producing such extreme pain as to render life almost insupportable. This disease arises from an attack which his Majesty had some years back. In addition to this, the King suffers from a nervous fever, which induces frequent delirium; and altogether the complication of disorders is so severe that even medical men do not hesitate to say that the case is incurable. How far the life of the King may be endangered is another question; it is, however, impossible for him to attend to public business, though, up to a certain time, the Giornale Official endeavored to create an impression that the King was devoted to public affairs.

The Haytien journals contain a curious recital of the sitting of the Senate at Hayti, in which Gen. Geffrard took the oaths as President. The gold crown of the Ex-Emperor was placed upon the table, and the new President, taking a little hammer in his hand, said he would not break the bauble—that would be an act of vandalism—but he would give it three "symbolical" strokes, after which it should be placed in the public treasury, "where it would be appreciated at its proper value." This was accordingly done, and the President retired amidst the acclamations of the Assembly.

The Newark Mercury denies the statement of the Jersey City Telegraph, that Mr. Ten Eyck, United States Senator elect from New-Jersey, is the owner of 200 slaves, bequeathed to Mrs. Ten Eyck by her father, Mr. Gadsby. The Mercury says Mr. Ten Eyck might have been the owner of a number of slaves from the estate referred to if he had been willing to become a slaveholder, yet that notwithstanding the value of the "property" devised, he absolutely refused to receive the legacy.

Colonel Shaffner has received a letter from Professor Morse, dated at Porto Rico, Feb. 22. Professor Morse says: "I have just had the unexpected official intelligence that the Queen of Spain has created me Knight Commander of the Order of Isabella the Catholic. A letter from the first Secretary of State has just announced this to me, with the promise of the diploma by the next steamer. The Swedish Royal Academy of Sciences at Stockholm has also elected me a foreign member of the Academy."

An equestrian performer out West has caught a man named Foster, who has personated him in public, and forced him to sign a document in which occurs this candid acknowledgement: "Whereas, Mr. Richardson, hearing of my false assumption of his name, has cowhided me, I hereby release him from any cause of action I may have against him by reason of such assault and battery, and promise never again to assume his name."

The Collector of Baltimore has received from the State Department two handsome telescopes, presented by the British Government to Captain Caldwell, and Mr. R. Barclay, chief mate, of the ship Flora McDonald, of that port, for rescuing the crew of the British vessel Jane Black, of Limerick, in the month of May last. The telescopes are accompanied by a note from the British Minister.

At the funeral of the late Rev. Dr. Kendall, at Plymouth, Mass., there was one peculiar feature in harmony with the whole arrangements. There was no mourning drapery in the church, but instead of it a green wreath hung in front of the pulpit, and a beautiful cross of flowers, of the purest white, laid upon the coffin.

Prince Adalbert, the brother of the King of Bavaria, is not only a full believer in the facts of spiritualism, but is himself a medium of a high order. He has been for some time informed that an entirely new musical instrument is soon to be given to the world through spirit influence.

A subscription has been opened among the Scotch residents in Montreal for the benefit of the Misses Begg, nieces of Robert Burns. Should the sum subscribed exceed £1,000, it is intended to distribute the overplus among other deserving relatives of the poet.

Mme. Gazzaniga, who, by the death of her husband, Count Malaspina, in Havana, became a widow, has again married. The spouse is Mr. Albetis, well known as one of the most successful music teachers in the city.

The report that Mr. Macready had turned pedagogue is contradicted. He is the founder of a school at Sherborne which is open to any poor boy who chooses to attend, and is frequently present at the school imparting knowledge.

Gov. Hincks is expected to arrive in Canada early in April from the Windward Islands. His stay in the Province will be short, as he proposes to visit London before his return to his Government, about the middle of May.

A committee has been formed at Stirling to take measures to secure the election of Mr. Oliphant—now Secretary to Lord Elgin, and whose return is expected from China—for that borough when a vacancy occurs.

The Captain-General of Cuba has addresse da very flattering letter to Mad. Gazzaniga, in acknowledgment of her donation of $1,000 to the Association of Domiciliary Beneficence.

Ex-Governor Seymour, of Connecticut, Minister to Russia, has been very ill at the Isle of Rhodes. His tour is concluded, and he expects to reach his home in Connecticut in May.

Madame Cora de Wilhorst, having recovered from her illness, has rejoined Mr. Strakosch's company at Cincinnati, and is announced to appear next in "Lucia."

A London paper says: "Mr. Spurgeon, we believe, now intends preaching at the chief chapels in and around the metropolis, to make collections for his monster tabernacle.

A LETTER FROM GENERAL PAEZ, HIS SONS, AND OTHERS.

In yesterday's Herald, "Cosmopolitan" was very anxious to know all about the life-preserving garments made by the Delano Life-preserving Coat and Vest Company, located at No. 256 Broadway. The Company can answer all "Cosmopolitan's" questions in the affirmative, and give abundant proof that their answers are based upon, and firmly founded in, truth. As the first step towards this, they submit the annexed letter from General PAEZ, his sons, and others:

ASTOR-PLACE HOTEL, NEW-YORK, Dec. 1, 1858.

Being in the form of an ordinary garment, it can be worn at all times, and on all occasions.

We will not take our departure without expressing our admiration of your highly useful invention, and urging all travelers by water never to be without this perfect protection against drowning.

We shall feel doubly sure on our passage home, knowing that we have the vests with us.

MONDAY, March 28—A. M.

The past week was one of unusual activity in the Cotton and Foreign Import trade. The speculation in the former is the heaviest we have known in New-York for several years. The transactions exceed forty thousand bales. Most of the sales are of Cottons already at sea, between the Southern ports and Liverpool. The same parcels were in many instances sold and resold from one dealer to another, so that no exact estimate of the amount to be drawn against can be arrived at. The sums arranged for, however, are known to be sufficient to influence the terms for mercantile Exchange on England, and, in turn, the rate for Bankers' bills, which are now called 109⅝@109¾ ₱ cent. The Import entries of the week reach $6,874,691, over one-half in Dry Goods, as by our table on Saturday. The entries the corresponding week last March were $3,539,821. The General Merchandise list embraces $532,000 in Teas, and $639,000 in Sugars. The movement altogether indicates an active and healthy trade for the supply of the interior, the heaviest being to the South and Southwest, where the consumers have been made full-handed by large and profitable crops, and to New-York and the New-England States, where manufacturing industry and the employment of labor have revived, to a degree scarcely equaled the year before the crisis. The Export clearances of the week from the port of New-York amount to $1,117,504, as against $1,125,966 same week last year. The Export of Specie is $208,985 against $83,130 same week last season. Although the Customs paid into the Sub-Treasury during the week amount to $793,000, the Specie balance in the establishment, by free disbursements through the week, stands a million lower, say $8,045,268, against $9,046,759 at the close of the previous week. The Banks received about $800,000 from this same, ($200,000 being sent in Gold to the Department at Washington;) but as the last average was a declining one, we look for only a moderate increase in the Specie average to be made up this afternoon. This Statement, however, will be a rising one, with a shipment due from California, and further Sub-Treasury disbursements to be added during the week. The probability is, that both the Loan and Deposit lines will be larger this afternoon. Some of the large Banks, while recently adding to their line a considerable sum of temporary loans on Government Stock, have not yet sent forward the overdue Treasury Bills held from last season for reimbursement. In reference to mercantile discounts, the business at Bank continues free, at moderate rates, for prime short paper, within 90 days, and even as long as 4 months; while dates running beyond the middle of July are taken less eagerly, though finding buyers outside at from 6 to 7 ₱ cent. for names classing strictly prime. Bills less known, either as to maker or indorser, are of course taken at a higher interest by 1 to 3 ₱ cent.

According to the Custom-house returns of the Foreign Trade at this port, which we published in summary form, by months, early in March, the Import entries for eight months of the current fiscal year to Feb. 28, were

The Stock Exchange still fails to respond to the improved activity in other branches of business. The current of speculative feeling at the Board of Brokers is the reverse of that in Cotton and Real Estate. The market has a partial Bull support on the Share list, while in State and Railway Bonds the outside or investment orders are sufficient to hold prices steady, and in some instance, an advance is realized in both descriptions. But in numbers, and of late in success, the Bear account preponderates, particularly in the Western Road Stocks, which continue to be sold to a very large extent on the calculation of still lower prices During the week past, however, the additional decline is not important, as the demand to fill out standing contracts as they mature is more than equal to the disposition of real holders to sell at present prices. The same class of speculators are multiplying their lines against New-York Central—hough the contest is so close that little or no impression is made below 79 ₱ cent. In Reading the Philadelphia Bull account in this market controls the Stock, and on Saturday 50 ₱ cent. was paid to meet the deliveries of the day. A similar firmness is shown in Harlem Preferred Shares which rose to 39½ ₱ cent. on some heavy orders at the Board to buy the stock in, cash and on time. The fluctuations are less wide on Pacific Mail, and the price has rather gained strength on the dealings of the week. Panama shares, Hudson River and Illinois Central are all steady. Erie is lower, and much neglected by speculation. The mortgages of the Company hold firm, while the Convertibles of 1871 have fallen off to 30 ₱ cent. Delaware, Pennsylvania Coal, and Cumberland, are steady. The first-named is 1 ₱ cent. higher than week before last. The operations in the new Federal Stock, both at the Board and by private sale have fallen off, nearly all the stock being out of first hands or withheld from market. The price advanced to 104¼, closing 104⅛ bid. Tennessee Sixes have advanced ½@1 ₱ cent., and Missouris ½ ₱ cent. We hear of considerable private sales of Tennessee Railway Sixes with the State indorsement at 80 ₱ cent., on orders to buy for the South. There is also some movement in Ohio and Pennsylvania Railway mortgages at 70 ₱ cent., and in the Southwestern City Bonds, such as Cincinnati, St. Louis, &c. For the Illinois Construction Bonds, 91 ₱ cent., buyer 60 days, was bid at close on Saturday. The General Market left off dull.

An abstract of the Annual Report of the Michigan Southern Board of Directors, in session here during the week past, was furnished to the morning papers to-day. But as the afternoon paper to whom the manuscript was furnished failed—for want of time we presume—to give all the figures on Saturday, we are only able to state in general terms that the operations of the year 1858 were:

In gross receipts	$2,019,424
Current expenses	1,242,152
Leaving to Bondholders and other creditors	$777,272

And that this result fully met all the interest upon the debt of the concern, of every class, and, also, the annual contribution to the Sinking Fund, leaving a small contingent of $1291, after the serious falling off in the gross business of the year from the revulsion of 1857.

As a very material misprint of the receipts of the Toledo Road, for eleven months of the fiscal year of the Company, occurred in our last paper, we subjoin the corrected figures, by months, as compared with last season:

	1858-9.	1857-8.		1858-9.	1857-8.
May	$70,000	$85,849	Nov.	$75,620	$82,724

Sept.	84,383	83,871	March	74,000	90,956

An intelligent Railway writer in the Chicago Tribune, who was at the Buffalo Convention, and evidently understands the whole bearing of the proceedings, as well as the practical effect against the Northern Roads of the St. Nicholas compact of 1857—now very properly abrogated—remarks:

"The contract of the four Eastern Roads—its provisions, some of them practical and valuable, some merely theoretical and valueless, others positively vicious against the mercantile interests of Chicago and other Northern cities—has operated to deprive the Northern lines of their legitimate business. * * But the fundamental error and injustice of that compact was the admission of the claim set up by the Southern lines, that New-York and Boston should be common points to all the lines, while Philadelphia and Baltimore should be intermediate points between New-York and the Mississippi River, and as such, entitled to a lower rate of fare and freight. In other words, although Philadelphia and Baltimore are Atlantic cities accessible by foreign commerce, yet they should have a veto power over the rates from New-York to the great West, while they shall be at liberty to court the trade of the West by offering rates of fare and freight greatly reduced. The effect of this has been to give to Baltimore the sale of 10,000 bags of coffee in a single week, while New-York sold but 1,000. It has made it necessary for New-York merchants to pay their customers from the Mississippi River from three to six dollars per ton, to induce them to continue their purchases at New-York, that sum being barely sufficient to place them on the same footing as to freight, as their neighbors who may have been induced to stop at Baltimore or Philadelphia to purchase. This injury is not confined to New-York, but affects Boston and every intermediate wholesaling city to, and including, Chicago. Is it not evident that if St. Louis is by this means permitted to receive its tonnage from the Atlantic cities at four to six dollars a ton less than Chicago, that by so much, added to the great facilities she has for cheap transportation by the Mississippi, she has the advantage of the latter in extending her commerce. Is this advantage a natural one, or is it produced by the right to dictate Western prices from New-York and Boston by these Southern cities? If the advantages are natural and not artificial, then we should not complain. But they are not natural. The only natural break, from the extreme North to Alabama, in the Allegany Mountains, is on one of the Northern lines; and cheap railroad transportation may be had on this line if anywhere. If a slower speed is admissible, the New-York and Erie, New-York Central, Michigan Central, and Michigan Southern can each avail itself of water, and get freight to Chicago with as little rail carriage as the Southern lines can get it to the Mississippi.

The only difficulty is in the vicious principle which the New-York road admitted in the compact of 1857, by which the Southern lines dictated the price out of New-York and Boston. For it must be remembered that, after the compact was signed, every change of rates must be made by unanimous vote of the four Presidents. One had a veto power against the other three. Such power was not only secured to one of the Presidents, but has actually been exercised by one to the prejudice of the Northern lines. This will not be denied. The effect of all this upon the Northern lines passing through Chicago, is by no means imaginary. Actual figures have been obtained by Captain SMITH, of the Minnesota Packet Company, and President TURNER, of the Galena and Chicago Union Railroad. The result shows that 40,000 tons of merchandise which should have passed through Chicago in 1858 to points above Fulton, passed by Southern routes and Mississippi steamers. By the report of the various Railroad Companies leading to Fulton and North, it will be found that the amount of tonnage lost to them in 1858, verifies these figures, and all this after having made a suitable deduction for the revulsion of 1857, extending to 1858. Other points on the south of Fulton would, doubtless, show more marked results."

The following figures will illustrate the influence of the accidental poverty of the Federal Treasury upon the economy and retrenchment of the public expenditures. The departments at Washington and the Committees of Congress during the late session, as well as that body itself, had to yield to the necessity—and, as the people of this country will no doubt conclude, the propriety—of cutting off nearly all extraordinary appropriations, and of materially, though not unreasonably, reducing the ordinary expenses of the Government. We give in separate columns the amounts estimated by the Departments, the amounts originally reported in the Senate, and also in the House, and, finally, the amount voted for the several branches of the public service, exclusive of the Post-Office.
